CURLEY NEAR DEATH IN AUTO CRASH

GIRL BARES LOVE FOR HART AS CAUSE OF BABY PLOT

(Copyright, 1923, by the Star Company and the Boston American. Reproduction in whole or part expressly forbidden and will be prosecuted under the law.)

"The statement that I have a child by William S. Hart is false," signed Elizabeth MacCauley, on May 23, 1923.

With flushed face, one hand supporting her by the table, but with bright eyes, and a determined look, Elizabeth MacCauley signed this document, her first confession in six years of the wrong she had done William S. Hart.

The signature came after hours during which the reporter had

MANY HURT IN COLLAPSE OF MAINE SARDINE PLANT

Lubec, Me., May 26.—Hazel Ramsdell was probably fatally injured and several other persons were badly hurt this afternoon when the plant of the Union Sardine Company collapsed. Twenty packers in the building were thrown to the lower floor with the machinery and packing tables. All physicians in town were summoned to work over the injured.

'CANNED' HEAT BURNS GIRL RESCUER ALSO IS INJURED

Her clothes aflame, Mrs. Ida Finegold, twenty years old, raced through the halls of her home, No. 1324 Tremont street this afternoon to the apartment of George Alexander for help. Her dress had caught fire from a box of "canned heat."

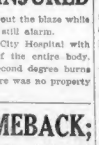
Alexander beat out the blaze while others sent in a still alarm.

The girl is at City Hospital with multiple burns of the entire body. Alexander has second degree burns of the hand. There was no property damage.

LAWSON PLANS FOR COMEBACK, WILL HAVE 10 MILLION SOON

By ROBERT L. MURRAY.

Thomas W. Lawson, America's most picturesque stock broker, broke his long silence today in an exclusive interview with the Boston American.



Thos. W. Lawson.

Since October 2nd, 1922, Mr. Lawson has secluded himself in an apartment at No. 90 Fenway. Today he started on a trip to Maine.

As he stepped from the doorway of his apartment he made a misstep and fell down a flight of marble stairs.

The writer and Douglas Lawson assisted him to his feet. With a laugh Mr. Lawson said: "Well, I am out again."

He drove to the North Station in

MAYOR IS RUSHED TO HOSPITAL

Bruised When Cars Collide in Brookline; Two Other Men Hurt

Mayor James M. Curley had a narrow escape from death in an automobile crash today at Brookline avenue and the Riverway.

His chest was bruised and there may be a slight fracture of the third or fourth rib.

The top of his straw hat was ripped off, leaving only the brim and crown on his head.

DOCTOR'S STATEMENT.

Dr. Martin J. English, the Mayor's family physician, said later:

"The Mayor received bruises to the left side of his chest. There is a possibility of a slight fracture of the third or fourth rib. We will not be positive, however, until the X-ray plates have been developed.

"The Mayor had a very narrow escape from death. The top of his straw hat was completely torn off.

"If there is no fracture of the ribs he probably will be back at his office in City Hall Monday or Tuesday."

Mrs. Curley is ill with chronic appendicitis. Asked how she took the news Dr. English said:

"Like any woman would—slightly nervous, of course. But she stood up under it very well, considering her condition."

The Mayor's machine was in collision with a car operated by Dr. Walter B. Lancaster of No. 320 Commonwealth avenue.

The Mayor, Richard J. Shaw, Boston architect, and Thomas Carey, city chauffeur, were pinned beneath the wreckage of the limousine, which was toppled over on one side.

The top of the Mayor's car was ripped off and all the windows were shattered, sending a shower of glass over the occupants.

DIVORCED, TO WED AGAIN; COUPLE, 79 AND 69, REUNITED

Divorced many years ago and later left alone by the death of their second life-mates, George Admiral Drake of Orange, 79, and Harriet E. Tenney, 69, of No. 24 Spencer Avenue, West Somerville, have now produced a real "romance of autumn."

Marriage intentions have been filed at Somerville.

After they were divorced they remarried. Mr. Drake became a widower and Mrs. Tenney was left a widow. A year ago Mr. Drake wrote, she replied. A mail courtship followed. Then the second proposal.

TURKS AND GREEKS AGREE FOR PEACE

Lausanne, May 26 (I. N. S.).—The Turco-Greek controversy has been amicably settled. Details will be worked out later. The settlement followed a three-hour conference. "Peace," dramatically exclaimed E. Venizelos, former Greek Premier, as he emerged from the conference room.

"BILL" HART'S ACCUSER TORTURED SIX YEARS BY HER DECEIT

TEARS AND SELF-REPROACH AFTER FORCED CONFESSION

Her signing was the greatest emotional moment in her forty years of life. It came after hours of argument, of showing her the folly and wickedness of the course she had taken for six years; it came after the reporter had spent hours with her at her home, without result.

Finally she agreed to come and meet the writer at a room in the Copley-Plaza Hotel, and there for hours more she was wrought with to undo at least the harm she had done and to remove the blot she had placed upon another.

Even then she seemed determined to persist in the deception that she had been the mother of a child of [illegible] tion picture actor. There [illegible] so possible chance that she could treat from this position.

[illegible] confession was not enough. It was not complete. It still left unanswered the riddle of the phantom child, and its identity, and she was urged to make a still more sweeping statement and say that she had never had a child, by any man.

At this personal question she suddenly bristled and said tartly: "What has that to do with this matter?"

Elizabeth MacConley is a woman of many moods. She passes very quickly from the depths to the heights. Her mood softened, and she said:

"In all sincerity, I have never had a child. I really thought that was perfectly understood. Hart is the only man I have ever seriously liked. But that is another story out there."

And Elizabeth MacConley left that hotel room with a tear in her eye and a smile on her lips.

This confession was made after days of mental stress, and of careful deliberation. Miss MacConley had been confronted with the results of the American's investigations, and edited and fought by turns.

Clung to Life

When first confronted with facts that disproved her story, she tried to explain them away.

She was told how the record of the birth at the hospital was false, in every particular, that she was not "Jane Doe," most fictitious of names, and that no male child had been born at the New York Infirmary, where she had said hers had been born, for two weeks before or after the date she had given. And that there was no doctor at that hospital by the name of McGreen, the name she had given.

It was pointed out to her, that, if she had had the baby, and wished William S. Hart to acknowledge it, the logical way would be for her to give the correct facts concerning its birth, and that the first step must be to give the correct birth place, and the date of her confinement.

An effort to show her the futility of carrying on this deception when she could not show or would not show evidence to prove her story was made.

This was put directly to her and made her see that her lie would not prevail because if required to prove it, she was destitute of evidence.

She sat back in her chair, her face flushed, her mouth twisting and drawn in defiance, and said:

"That is a question I will answer to Mr. Hart alone, to no one else. For six years I have been willing to explain this and I never had a chance.

Blames Refusal

"He has refused to see me, I would not hurt him for the world. I would never have gone to District-Attorney Woolwine in Los Angeles, if he had not refused to see me, without any explanation. I cannot, to this day, understand, why he should not want to see me."

Then, she was asked why it was no one could be found who had seen the baby.

Her frail excuse was:

"I was afraid that even though Hart might despise me, he might try to kidnap the baby."

Then she was asked why she had taken another woman's baby to Los Angeles, and exhibited it as her own, and she said:

Repeats Charge

"I wanted to find a way to get the baby here with me, and if you only knew my mother you would understand that I had to be so cautious to keep her from finding out. A friend of mine, never mind who, advised me to temporarily go into an adoption proceeding.

"In this way I could get a series of letters about a baby and I could show these letters to my mother, and tell her that I had become very fond of a baby boy and wished to adopt it, then I could take my own baby instead of the one I had started out to adopt.

"This was prior to the confession, when Miss MacConley was fighting hard to convince the reporter of the truth of her gross deception, and that she was really the mother of Hart's baby.

As many as two hundred times she repeated this statement.

And on the last day, with confession almost on her lips, she still stuck to the story of the baby.

Of Hart, she said:

"I thought so much of Mr. Hart. I could see in him a man so splendid and I thought his sister one of the most lovable women I have ever known. There was something beautiful in her simplicity of thought and action.

"While I was in Los Angeles there was a girl I have always loved dearly since we were little girls at home. Later I tutored her.

She was about thirty and I was in my thirties, and she looked up to me and said I was the only person in the world, who had a good influence on her. This girl used a lot of paint and bonnaed her hair, and wore loud colors, and she was having a most unfortunate love affair. I thought that I was the one to help her.

Was Testing Him

"At that time, I never dreamed that I, austere and reputable, prudently respectable, should ever be connected with anything of the sort.

"What a joke now."

She had laughed bitterly, as she said this, but quickly rallied to her own defence, with a final show of courage, and said bravely:

"I did not want Bill Hart to marry me. I did not want him to come near me. I wanted him to show he was not yellow. I wanted to see what he was. Under no circumstances if he showed to be yellow, did I want him to know where the child was."

She continued acting with the emotional intensity of a seasoned actress.

Temporarily she was the mother of her phantom baby. Her feelings rose in a flush to her face. There seemed almost a vibration in the air, so vehement was this woman, her blue eyes smouldering, her head thrown back, as she said:

"If Bill Hart were not the right sort of father for my child, I wanted to know it. So I tested him with one test after another to make sure, for about that baby. I, who am generally mild, and I, who have so much love in my nature, so much sympathy, am like a lioness about her whelp. A child should have the right sort of a father."

And this was just before the confession. She had been working up into an emotional crisis. She was holding firmly to the lie, but she knew that presently she could hold no longer. The truth which has fought this woman for six years, was about to have its way with her. Her very emotion, which she let go to support her deceit, was weakening her against the steady expression of the truth, and her soul was crying for a peace she had not known for six years.

She had risen and was walking back and forth in the hotel room, eyes dilated and her breath coming in quick gasps. It was realized that yesterday, the truth would come. And yet it was another hour before it came.

Decides on Truth

It was seen that a direct thrust at this point might reach a vulnerable part. She was asked:

"It can be proved that you haven't any child, proved beyond the peradventure of a doubt; why will you persist in this deceit?"

Point by point the case against her was renewed. She grew rigid and tense. Her hands were clinched. She moved uneasily, and all the time truth was all but on her lips.

Then came decision. It was evidenced in the gleam in her eye in the softening of the hard line of her lips.

"I never wanted to hurt Bill Hart. I thought this would always be a secret. I never meant to deceive, and since this has all come about I have not known want to do. I had nobody to ask.

"Oh what a mess." She sobbed as a child might sob, lying back in her chair. At an attempt to comfort her she drew herself together with a tremor of her entire body, and said:

"I don't want any sympathy. I didn't know. It is all so terrible I don't want anybody to know how I have suffered. I was not true about the baby. Write it out and I will sign it. It was all a mistake. Oh how I have suffered.

She broke down utterly then, but the relief of the freedom from six years of torture soon showed. She became more quiet, and calmer, her last burst of emotion forced this from her.

"My reputation, my life—everything—all this happening to me. It was like a little snowball, made at the top of a hill. It rolled down the hill, and it got bigger and bigger, and bigger, and it seemed never to be going to stop. I didn't intend to tell the truth, but I want to tell the truth now.

"My God, that is what I have wanted to do for years, it seems to me. That is what I wanted to tell Bill Hart. I wanted to explain to him, how it happened that I thought of doing such a thing. He wouldn't see me and I thought he ought to have seen me.

Scandalized Hart

"I know he heard something about me, because I was with that girl, the girl I spoke of, and he suddenly left me alone. He wouldn't let me explain it. He thought I was a terrible woman, and I wanted to explain. I am not a woman to be treated with such casual contempt. Then I thought I would get him to see me by writing a letter from the train. I did and then I had to see him.

"I could not explain through other people why I had done such a thing. I couldn't. Did you ever tell an untruth, and find it the most embarrassing thing in the world to explain — even about little things and this got bigger and bigger, and now it is beyond my control.

"I have wanted to explain more than anything in the world for so many years. I want to tell the truth now, and even now I am sorry I can't explain to Mr. Hart, as he is the one I should explain to. Write and tell him for me. I hope this thing is cleared up now, and I do hope it hasn't hurt him any. It is all untrue, from beginning to end. I have never had any child, I have never liked anyone, as I have still Hart. It can't hurt him any for me to like, as that is my affair and not his. But he had no right to treat me with contempt."

Miss MacConley was much defiant. She is the sort of woman who likes sympathy, but will not receive it. She was now facing the world though bruised at heart, and steamed but with the same valiant spirit that she had shown before her confession. Then she said:

"I hope this is the end of all this. It is too bad there hadn't been a decent end six years ago. I don't care whether people like me or not, but I do care when I am not treated with respect.

"There is no worse offence to woman than this. I wanted to force Bill Hart to hear what I wanted to say. That is all.

"Thank heaven it is over."

ACCUSER AND HER CONFESSION.
Elizabeth MacConley, Wellesley graduate, who accused Bill Hart of being the father of her child. A facsimile of Miss MacConley's confession, written in Boston, is also shown

"I Was Walking in Hades," Hart Wires

The following telegram has been received from William S. Hart:

LOS ANGELES, Cal., May 26.—William Randolph Hearst, Boston American, Boston, Mass.:

I have learned from your Los Angeles Examiner that through the splendid news organization of the American, one of your representatives has secured an exclusive confession from Miss Elizabeth MacConley that the child of which she charged me of being the father was not even her child, but in reality a borrowed one.

W. S. HART

How much her unfounded charges have made me suffer! What mental anguish they have caused me the world will never understand.

Thank God that, through your great newspaper, I have been vindicated from this awful accusation.

I feel nothing but sorrow for Miss MacConley.

Your newspaper has done me a service that I never can forget, and, beyond the personal side of it, your achievement is marvelous. Remember, this woman made a district attorney believe her story. So I see in your achievement one of the greatest pieces of journalism that I have ever known.

That I happen to be the beneficiary of the moment is of less importance than that the motioin picture industry and the American people have the Hearst papers to rely on to get at the truth of all things.

I was walking through Hades and they turned the lights out on me. You have brought me out of the darkness. I wish I could shake hands with you across the continent. I am saying God bless you.

CHINESE SEIZE U. S. VESSEL AND OIL CARGO; GUNBOAT SENDS PARTY IN PURSUIT

Canton, May 26 (A.P.)—A lighter with a full cargo of kerosene, owned by the Texas Oil Company, was seized by Chinese pirates near here today. An armed party from the American gunboat Helena has been dispatched in pursuit.

Peking, May 26. (I.N.S.)—Minister Deiretas of Portugal, dean of the diplomatic corps today served notice on the Chinese foreign office that a commission of foreign military officials will depart soon to study the situation at Linchow and Pautzuka, near headquarters of the bandits who seized foreign captives, including Americans.

The commission will include General Conner, commanding United States troops in North China.

EX-DRY OFFICIALS JAILED; CHARGE PLOT TO BIG MEN

Cleveland, May 26.—Fred Counts, former federal prohibition agent for the Cleveland district, and his brother, Attorney A. Frank Counts, were arrested today on indictments charging conspiracy to violate the Volstead act and to defraud the government by obstructing prohibition enforcement.

Joseph A. Shearer, former federal prohibition director for Ohio, and Samuel A. Hoskins, politician, were arrested on the same charges as they arrived here from Columbus.

The charges are based on the recent "million dollar Akerlund alcohol conspiracy" which resulted in the recent penitentiary terms for six men. It is charged that the Counts brothers received many thousands as bribes.

LYNN GIRL FOILS HUGGER WHO HAD ATTACKED HER

"Jack the Hugger" in gray suit and green cap, who has been frightening Lynn women and girls, met his match in 19-year-old Mary Connaughton.

Miss Connaughton was on her way home at No. 36 Appia street. As she passed the Hollingsworth street school the "Hugger" leaped from behind a fence and seized her by the shoulders.

The startled girl struck, kicked and screamed. The "Hugger" fled. Miss Connaughton ran home.

2 HELD FOR BABE'S DEATH; AUTO STRUCK TOT'S BUGGY

Salem, May 26.—Paul Genereaux, 38, and Anna Rose of Lynn were held in $1,000 each for the Grand Jury today on a charge of manslaughter in killing Mary Craig, the two and one-half-year-old child of Mr. and Mrs. William Craig, in this city. Mary Craig was struck by an automobile driven by Genereaux and Miss Rose while she was riding in her baby carriage in Which Mrs. Craig was wheeling the child, killing the latter.

The automobile, which Genereaux was teaching Miss Rose to drive, ran on the sidewalk and struck the baby carriage in which Mrs. Craig was wheeling the child, killing the latter.

CHECK CAPE COD FIRES; CONSTABULARY ON WATCH

Sandwich, May 26.—Fires which have swept over thousands of acres of woodland on Cape Cod this week, are under control.

Members of the State constabulary are patrolling the district to assist residents in preventing a further outbreak.

Large valuable timber was destroyed and, although the flames approached dangerously close to several villages at times, no buildings were burned.

FIRE TWICE AT POLICEMAN IN EVERETT AND RUN AWAY

Two revolver shots greeted patrolman Charles A. Groton of the Everett force near Second street and the parkway today. Ogston was trying the doors on the gasoline filling station on that corner.

The shots were fired pointblank by two men who had been crouching in the shadows nearby. After firing a single shot each, they fled.

Ogston, a brand new patrolman, serving his fifth night on duty, replied with four shots and then gave chase. He lost the trail in the bushes surrounding the high school athletic field.

SCYTHIA SAILS WITH MANY NOTABLES

"A brilliant sailing."

That's what the Society Editor might call the departure of liner Scythia from East Boston today for Queenstown and Liverpool.

Society persons en voyage, bidden farewell by society friends. Flowers galore. Style ditto. Girls with the charm of youth heightened by the thrill of going. Smiles, laughter, chatter.

Altogether it was like the gay old time sailings of pre-war days.

The Scythia bore 150 saloon, 250

Parkman of Boston, Dr. H. W. Dana of Boston City Hospital staff and family, Columbia University debating team, champions of Eastern Intercollegiate Debating League, sailing to meet Oxford and Cambridge debaters.

FLOOD STOPS R. R. IN NEWFOUNDLAND

Curling, Nfld., May 26.—Traffic on the main line of the Newfoundland Railway in the western part of the colony has been interrupted by floods resulting from the thawing of the snow. At Sandy Lake River a stretch of track 1,700 feet long is under eight feet of water. Passengers and mails are being ferried across. Grand Lake and Sandy Lake have become virtually a single body of water, and the country is flooded for miles around.

WOMAN ACCUSED OF STEALING FROM DEAD

Accused of theft of $100 worth of property from the late Miss Mary A. Talbot, forty-five years old, of No. 7 Phillips street, West End, Miss Anna Mackey, fifty, of No. 23 Wall street, today pleaded not guilty and was held in bail of $300 for a hearing Tuesday in Municipal Court. Policeman McCarthy charges Miss Mackey, another woman and a man had been having a party at the Phillips street address and that the women stole all the dead woman's possessions after an undertaker had removed the body.

GULF-TO-CANADA FLIGHT, FLIER ON WAY

Houston, Tex., May 26.—Lieut. Harrison C. Crocker of Kelly Field, San Antonio, Tex., hopped off from Ellington Field here at 5:21 a. m. (Central standard time) on a non-stop Gulf-to-Canada flight. He expects to land at Selfridge Field, near Detroit, Mich.

TEN-MILLION COUP. PLAN OF LAWSON

one of his luxurious automobiles and boarded a Boston & Maine train. On the way to Portsmouth he talked at length of his financial ventures and his plans.

"I want you to know that I have paid every cent I owe—from fifteen to sixteen millions of dollars," he said. "After I've rested up, I'm going back into Wall street, and I'm going to start the most furious campaign I've ever worked. By December 31 I'll have ten million dollars.

"All the details are completed for my campaign in the street. It has taken me years to work them out.

"Ten years ago I owned bonds worth thirty millions.

"Besides these I owned Dreamwold, which, with its equipment, was worth two and one-half millions. I also owned an eight hundred acre ranch in Oregon.

MADE NOTHING IN WAR

"As you know, trading in stocks was stoped during the war and this prevented me from going into Wall street. Many came to me with 'war tables,' but I refused to touch any of this money. I am happy to say I did not make a peny out of the war.

"During these years I went on spending money as I had always spent it before, at the rate of three millions a year. As a result I found I owed sixteen millions.

The sale of my own jewels and those of Mrs. Lawson, and the sale of art works and other property enabled me to pay off all but two hundred thousand dollars.

"I went to a number of men, all of them millionaires, due to the start I gave them. I offered six hundred and fifty thousand dollars security for a loan of two hundred thousand dollars, which would have saved me.

"Not one of these would make me the loan.

"A Boston broker who tore up notes for three hundred and seventy thousand dollars and a New York broker who offered to give me a trading balance are the only men I have enrolled who have shown me any appreciation.

PLANS WALL STREET COUP.

"I have learned a lesson. During the past eight months I have laid my plans for the future. By December 31 I will have ten million dollars in cash.

"I am going into Wall Street this Fall and I am going to give them a campaign that will make all my previous ones look like child's play.

"There is not a man in the world that I owe a cent. I want to make money just to show the friends who deserted me that their betrayal cannot keep me down.

"I have never gone after money in Wall street and failed. The fact that I have spent seventy-five millions of dollars is proof of that.

"The first of next year I am going to give one million dollars for a home for aged financial writers."

"Why exclude the rest of us, Mr. Lawson?" was asked.

"Oh," laughed Mr. Lawson, "this home is only for those who have helped bring the lambs to slaughter."

The Pot Boils
What Is a Radical?
Lasker an Editor?
Sky Writing

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1923, Star Co.

THE EUROPEAN pot to boiling. Ask in your prayers that we be kept out of it. The Greek fleet threatens the Dardanelles. Yesterday the British Admiral Brock, commanding the Mediterranean fleet, started for the Dardanelles, a flotilla of destroyers following.

Mustapha Kemal, with 50,000 men, is ready to start another war if the Greeks cross the Maritza River. Plenty of trouble over there for the United States, if we insist on going after it through a League of Nations, a World Court, or any other mixture.

SENATOR BORAH says this Congress should attend to American affairs, and announces bills on coal, freight and general profiteering. It is a pleasure and a surprise to see an American statesman with his mind and his plans here in the United States.

MR. BURNS, head of the government Secret Service, says he would drive all radicals out of the United States. What is Mr. Burns's definition of a radical? Lincoln was thought very radical once—many of the most respectable would have aided in hanging him. John Brown was radical—they did hang him.

Franklin, Jefferson, Patrick Henry and others that promoted the American Revolution were all radical. Respectability would have hanged them all. What is the exact definition of "radical" in May, 1923?

YESTERDAY was sold the New York Globe, recently inherited by a young man from an old man that married the widow of a rich railroad man. The purchaser's name, withheld, was guessed to be A. D. Lasker, the young human dynamo, about to leave the Shipping Board. Lasker likes trouble, and sooner or later he will have a newspaper to supply it. But he probably didn't buy the Globe—he would begin with something bigger.

ADVERTISING is to business what irrigation and fertilizers are to crops. And advertising is a perennial crop. Well planted, it bears fruit year after year. It is the one asset that nothing can take from you, except your own foolishness.

The new kind of advertising is "sky writing." First you learn to run a flying machine, then you write advertising in smoke against the sky. That's the newest advertising and the oldest. The first advertisement of that kind was the rainbow advertising "no more floods."

Sky advertising will call for a highly condensed literary style.

HENRY FORD lends money to the city of Detroit, charging 4 per cent. interest, and is willing to lend more, enough to finance city-owned subways. This will not enhance his standing with the Wall Street gentlemen.

Lending money without a rake-off, and at 4 per cent., would be considered the unpardonable sin by that crowd.

MISS DABB, of the Y. W. C. A., opposes the dances of the semi-wild Indians because sometimes in the "give-away" dance they give away their wives. That's done by the prosperous sometimes, as Miss Dabb might learn, in New York or in Chicago without any Indian dance to stimulate the giving.

FOR THE first time in thirty-five years, Bill Davenport, of Jefferson, N. H., heard a sermon. It was preached by Dr. Frick in Schenectady. Mr. Davenport, who heard the sermon in a country store many miles away, wrote to Dr. Frick: "The sermon was very distinct and the singing was fine." That would interest preachers of olden times, a voice travelling hundreds of miles to find a sinner in the country store, and commanding his attention.

Victim of Non-Stop Jazz Fad

CHARLES BLAMFIELD

The Marathon dance craze went to the head of Charles Blamfield, recently arrested and found possessor of a fire-making machine.

During his stay in the Psychopathic Hospital, where he has been under observation, Blamfield has babbled continuously about dancing, making the claim that he is the fastest dancer in the world and stating that he can dance longer than anybody in the world.

The report of C. Macfie Campbell, director of the Psychopathic Hospital, states that Blamfield is mentally deranged and that the principle psychosis is his belief that he is a marvelous dancer.

It was found that Blamfield was preparing for a Marathon dance that would make all other such events seem like two-minute hops by comparison. It was Blamfield's ambition to dance for two weeks without stopping.

In pursuit of this ambition, he wrote scores of letters to girls in and about Boston, in which he told of his ambition and suggested that the girls make an appointment with him for a "tryout."

In some of these letters he stated that only lack of a suitable partner prevented him from becoming the greatest dancer in the world.

TAKE 3 SUSPECTS IN STOLEN AUTO

It was a shiny touring car of expensive make.

It held three colored youths as it rolled luxuriously into McDonough square, in Lynn. Patrolmen Murphy, Coppinger and Trowel became interested.

The youths could show neither licenses nor registration. The police found the car was registered to William S. Phillips of No. 26 Windsor street, Roxbury, and had been reported as stolen that very night.

The trio, Lynn police said, admitted having taken the car for a pleasure trip. They were turned over to officers from Boston.

SEIZE "DIP" IN CROWD WATCHING MONKEY

A group of people gathered around a hand organ grinder's monkey as he capered about Portland street, doffing his cap and picking up pennies. In the crowd was Rosana De Lapa, who edged in and out as though better to watch the monkey. A plain clothes man, attracted by his movements claims he saw De Lapa reach his hand into another man's pocket. He seized him. Today De Lapa was given three months in jail. He appealed.

GIVES $500,000 FOR HARVARD CHEMISTRY

Kansas City, Mo., May 26.—Announcement of a gift of $500,000 to Harvard University by Edward Mallinckrodt of St. Louis, was made at a session of the twenty-fifth annual meeting of the Associated Harvard Clubs here. Mr. Mallinckrodt, a chemical manufacturer, gave the money to be used in the erection of a new chemical laboratory. His son was in the class of 1900.

PAROLES FORBIDDEN BY STATE

Atwood "Got by" Through Work at the Rutland Prison Camp

There will be no more paroles for Fish Trust men who were sentenced to Deer Island and later transferred to the prison hospital on Long Island.

Angered by the soft treatment said to have been accorded the fourteen prisoners, the State has made this decision.

Simeon Atwood, one of the Fishmen, was paroled May 4, having begun service his sentence before the others. He served all but twenty-eight days of a five months' sentence.

Henry A. Higgins, acting chairman of the State Board of Parole and Deputy Commissioner of Correction for the State, said today:

"The State's custom is to transfer prisoners to the prison camp at Rutland for manual labor before they are paroled. Simeon Atwood worked there with a pick and shovel.

"If the fourteen others are so sick they must be kept at Long Island, they are too sick to be paroled."

Atwood was transferred to the prison camp April 1, a month and four days before his parole.

According to State authorities, the Fishmen were sentenced to hard labor, prison fare, to wear prison clothes, to be confined behind bars at night, to receive no extra privileges and to stay on Deer Island.

They have gradually been removed to the hospital island. Superintendent James Molloy of Deer Island, the State officials understand, has asked Superintendent John Ryan of Long Island for their return.

BUYS SITE FOR NEW THEATRE

Announcement was made today by the Tremont Realty Company that it has purchased the entire block bounded by Tremont, Hollis, Dillaway and Dore streets and including Wilbur theatre. This gives the company control of 56,417 square feet of land.

The buildings on the tract are already being razed to give way to what is pledged to be the finest theatre in America, to be called the Capitol, operated by the Olympia Theatres, Inc., of which Nathan H. Gordon is president and Max Shoolman treasurer.

The theatre will be devoted to motion pictures, musical entertainments and other forms of theatricals. The controlling company already owns or controls 61 theatres in all parts of New England.

In addition there will be built a fourteen story office building, the first under the new statute permitting structures 155 feet high.

$1,145,000 BONDS FOR LIGHT COMPANY

The Department of Public Utilities issued an order today authorizing the New Bedford Gas and Edison Light Company to issue additional six per cent. bonds of $1,145,000, for additions, extensions and improvements to its plant. The capital stock of the company is $4,579,200, and its outstanding bonds, $3,434,000.

MAINE TEACHER FINDS WIFE'S BODY IN RIVER

York, Me., May 26.—Mrs. Edwin K. Welch, wife of a high school teacher, committed suicide by drowning today. She left home clad only in night clothes and leaped from Mill Bridge. Her husband later found the body in four feet of water. Mrs. Welch had been treated recently for nervous trouble.

BOXER "KEWPIE" ROY SAVES 5 FROM FIRE

Manchester, N. H., May 26.—"Kewpie" Roy, welterweight boxer, was today the hero of a fire that damaged the home of Mrs. L. Belanger, 146 Rimmon street. The blaze started when a member of the family dropped a lamp she was using to heat a curling iron. Ray rushed into the blazing house and carried five children to safety before an alarm was sounded.

DROWNS FROM CANOE IN LANDING FISH

Greenville, Maine, May 26.—Edward McLean, assistant foreman of a Bangor & Aroostook construction crew, was drowned when a canoe was capsized in the excitement of catching a fish. His companion in the canoe, C. M. White, foreman of the construction crew, was also thrown into the water but was rescued. McLean's body has not been recovered. Two brothers, who are members of the crew, are joining in the search.

CHINESE STREETS 'BLOCKED BY BODIES' OF SLAIN MEN

Canton, May 26 (AP).—Streets of Shinhing, about fifty miles west of Canton, were blocked by the bodies of soldiers, Shinhing was captured by the Canton constitutionalists after two city gates had been mined. The retreating army looted and stripped the place.

PROTEST U. S. 'DRY' DECISION; FIVE NATIONS HEARD FROM

Washington, May 26.—Five foreign governments, British, French, Italian, Spanish and Dutch, have made known to Secretary of State Hughes their position in regard to the recent Supreme Court ruling against the presence of liquor on foreign ships inside the three mile limit.

In substance, it was said today at the department, the five countries take the same position in calling attention to the "inconveniences" resulting from the court decision, and also point out that freedom of international commercial intercourse is threatened if heretofore recognized practices of comity between nations in this regard are abandoned.

GERMAN MAGNATES YIELD; WILL HELP PAY REPARATIONS

London, May 26 (AP).—It is stated that the Federation of German Industrialists has informed the German government that the members of the federation are prepared to give the requisite guarantees for international loans for reparation purposes says a dispatch to Reuter's from Berlin today.

MAC SPURNS LIFE-PRESERVER SAILS WITH LONGEST BEARD

Alistair MacWilkie, with the longest whiskers in civilization, sailed on the Cunard liner Scythia today for a visit to Scotland, where his marvellous beard started.

He has been visiting in Boston, where his whiskers grew six inches in three weeks, from 11 feet, 6 inches to 12 feet flat.

The whiskers, like prize-fight frame-ups, are "in the bag." For convenience he folds 'em up in a pouch when not on display.

personal physician, passing at the time, and Dr. Lancaster dragged the Mayor and his companions from the wreck.

Dr. English then took Mayor Curley and the other two men to City Hospital.

Examination disclosed the Mayor was suffering from bruises of the chest and severe shock.

Accompanied by Dr. Dowling, superintendent of City Hospital and Dr. Wilson he went to the X-ray room, where Thomas Follen, x-ray expert made examinations of both the mayor and Mr. Shaw. This disclosed neither was suffering from internal injury.

Mr. Shaw has a badly lacerated left thumb and a cut in the small of the back, both due to falling glass.

CHAUFFEUR ESCAPES

Carey escaped unharmed, although badly shaken.

The Mayor was bound from his home on Jamaicaway to Young's Hotel, where he was scheduled to speak before the Mayors' Club of Massachusetts.

According to his account to police officers, Dr. Lancaster was outward bound and both cars turned to pass each other. The city machine was hit amidship and was thrown on one side.

The Mayor was determined at first to keep his appointment at the Mayors' Club, but finally returned home.

RUMOR DORIS RANKIN TO WED NEXT MONTH

New York, May 26.—Broadway showed unwonted interest today in news that Doris Rankin, who recently divorced Lionel Barrymore, was in the list of probable June brides. Rumor had it that the actress and Captain Malcolm Mortimer, British war hero and vaudeville playwright, will be married at Washington next month.

FIANCEE STARTS SEARCH

Armenian Couple Were to Have Been Married Next Tuesday in Boston

With his marriage day but a few hours off, Rev. Asadore Solokian of the Armenian Congregational Church of Lawrence, has disappeared.

Lawrence police and Mary Messrabian, his fiancee, of No. 612 Massachusetts avenue, South End, have instituted a search for the missing minister, and the girl went to Lawrence to search there.

Next Tuesday was the date on which the minister and the girl were to have been married. Invitations had been sent out. Relatives were ready for the ceremony, which was to have been performed at the Shawmut Congregational Church.

Last Tuesday Mr. Solokian left Boston for Lawrence, telling his intended bride that he was going to that city to fix up a love-nest for them. On Thursday at 1:30 p. m. he left his rooming house in Lawrence. Since then no trace has been found of him.

Friends of the girl were today unable to account for his strange absence. His devotion to the pretty girl that was to have become his wife was commented on by them.

Why he did not hear from him this morning, the girl notified the Lawrence police to search for him.

BOSTON ELKS' PLANS FOR MEMORIAL DAY

Boston Lodge of Elks will hold their memorial services at Mount Hope cemetery on Wednesday at 11 a. m. St. Cecilia's male quartet, accompanied by Herbert D. Horne, will render music. Joseph O'Connell will read the Elks' original poem, and Michael J. Murray, Judge of the municipal court, will be the orator of the day.

Boston lodge will have a number of yachts aboard the President Roosevelt that sails from New York Monday. Arrangements have been made with the captain to have all Elks aboard to gather on deck Wednesday morning at 11 and cast the wreath into the water in memory of all Elks that passed away on the water. John A. Canfield is in charge of Memorial Day committee.

MOTHER OF FOUR KILLED BY FALL

Lawrence, May 26.—Mrs. Salem Nader, thirty-seven, of No. 341 Oak street, was instantly killed today when she fell twenty-five feet from the piazza of her home. The fall of the piazza broke Mrs. Nader's neck and was fatal, death was instantaneous. She was the mother of four children.

FRENCH EXECUTE GERMAN FOR SABOTAGE IN THE RUHR DISTRICT

FIRST CASE OF DEATH PENALTY

Former Prussian Officer Was Convicted as a Spy as Well as R. R. Wrecker

Dusseldorf, May 26 (AP).—Albert Schlageter was executed by French troops today for sabotage on railroads in the occupied region and other offences.

This is the first execution by the French in the occupied zone.

Schlageter was executed in a stone quarry near a cemetery. He was escorted there by two priests and met death unfalteringly. Ten shots were fired.

Besides sabotage, Schlageter, a former Prussian officer, was convicted by a French courtmartial of espionage and association with criminals. He admitted he had blown up railroad tracks and bridges.

Berlin Paper Declares French Reds Aid Germans

Berlin, May 26. (I. N. S.)—In an article headed "Soviet Star and Tri-Color," the newspaper tag charges today that an alliance exists between the French and German Reds. The paper asserted that French agents furnished money and arms to the Communists.

"But this unnatural alliance will blow up like a soap bubble," predicted the paper.

Reds Rule Geisenkirchen and Impose Prohibition

Essen, May 26. (I. N. S.)—The industrial city of Gelsenkirchen, on the northern boundary of the Ruhr, is completely in the hands of the German Reds. They are imposing the death penalty for looting.

Shops are virtually sold out, due to low prices enforced by the Communists. Shopkeepers are waiting to replenish stocks owing to heavy losses they would sustain. Famine is threatened.

Communists Vote General Strike for Westphalia

Berlin, May 26 (AP).—The Communist Workers Council has decided to extend the strike movement in the occupied zone to the whole of Westphalia and the right bank of the Rhine, says a dispatch from Dusseldorf. The council had the permission of the French authorities to hold the meeting at Essen at which the action was taken.

YOUTH GIVES BLOOD TO SAVE PROFESSOR

Fitchburg, May 26.—Word has been received here that James L. Conrad of this city, a student at Villa Nova College, Villa Nova, Pa., has submitted to a blood transfusion operation in an attempt to save the life of Dr. George Schaeffer, professor of modern languages at the college. Conrad was one of 300 students of the college who volunteered to give their blood when the Rev. Fr. J. P. McGuire of the college announced to the student body that a blood transfusion was the only hope of saving the professor's life.

Society Folk Enter Horses for Big Show, Betty Alden Reports

By BETTY ALDEN.

FOR twenty years the Chestnut Hill Horse Show has been drawing a goodly crowd of exhibitors into the ring, but this year the list of entrants has broken all previous records.

Prominent among those who have entered their mounts in the show are George S. West, Jr., Mrs. Edwin S. Webster, Miss Elizabeth Saltonstall, John P. Bowditch, Muriel G. Saltonstall, Isabella Grandin, Mrs. Gardiner H. Fiske, Mrs. I. Tucker Burr, Jr., Francis Peabody, Rosamond Adie, Mrs. George S. West, Hugh Bancroft, Freeman Allen and young Joanne B. Shaw, daughter of Mrs. Arthur F. Johnson, formerly the wife of Louis A. Shaw. Also in the list of contestants I note the name of Theodore P. Grosvenor of Beacon street, whose recently announced engagement to Miss Anita Strawbridge caused a considerable flutter of interest.

The show takes place next Wednesday—Memorial Day—on the Chestnut Hill grounds of the Longwood Cricket Club. It opens at 9:45 and parking space may be reserved at $5 per space.

MRS. ROBERT H. STEVENSON Jr. of Marlboro street, has just paid another of her flying visits to New York, where she stopped at the Hotel Ambassador.

THERE is naturally no little interest centering about the group of Americans who will be presented at the British Court within a fortnight.

Of the Bostonians on this small list are Mrs. Edward Everett, Miss Mary Mackay and pretty Rebecca Smith, whose blonde hair and large brown eyes distinguish her wherever she goes. Also on the list are Mrs. Charles Sumner Hamlin and her daughter, Anna Hamlin, both of them members of the Chilton Club here though their Winter home has been in Washington for several seasons now.

Which reminds me of the claims when Anna Hamlin—one of the "peppiest" girls of the capital—played hostess to Crown Prince Leopold of Belgium. This interesting occasion took place some three years ago while the Hamlins were staying at their Summer place in Mattapoisett. It seems that Miss Hamlin was asked by Mayor Peters to entertain the Prince on his visit to the Hub. So, after luncheon at the Copley-Plaza, the young Prince from Belgium and the young lady from Boston set out for Cambridge, accompanied by Lieutenant Charles Codman. Then followed a tour of inspection of the grounds and buildings of Harvard, with crowds of the students recognizing the Prince wherever the party went and crowding around their automobile, cheering wildly all the while. Anna Hamlin, by the way, "pals" around quite a lot with sportloving Alisa Mellon and bigeyed Margaret Harding, sister of Mrs. Elizabeth Harding Prince, who created rather a furore among Boston's male contingent upon her arrival here.

Miss Anna Hamlin of Boston and Washington, is one of the Americans who will be presented at the British Court very soon. She's a member of the 1913-19 Sewing Circle, the Vincent and Chilton Clubs.

BENCH AND BAR LAUD LIFE OF SALTONSTALL

The life of the late Endicott Peabody Saltonstall, district attorney for Middlesex County, as a lawyer and public official was memorialized today by prominent speakers in the supreme Court.

Justice Braley presided. Speakers included Charles W. Eliot, president emeritus of Harvard University; William V. Thompson of the grievance committee of the Bar Association; Robert Homans, C. W. Blood, a member of Saltonstall's law firm; James C. Rily, former assistant district attorney under Saltonstall; Merofield Storey and William B. Stevens, retired justice of the Superior Court.

E. P. Saltonstall

Attorney Thompson spoke of Saltonstall's noted lineage, and the fact that members of nine generations of the Saltonstall family have attended Harvard.

Mr. Blood in his tribute remarked:

"In these days when some members of the bar have brought discredit on the profession, it is a pleasure to pay our respects to a man whose sense of honor was so high."

Justice Braley, in a concluding speech said:

"As we contemplate the lessons of his life we bid him Hail and Farewell, for the light he leaves behind him shines along the path of men."

OHIO DANCERS PASS 168-HOUR RECORD

Youngstown, O., May 26.—Miss Francis Mercer and Harry Wagner, who began dancing at a park near here last Saturday, today claimed a world record when they passed the 168-hour mark. They say the previous 168-hour record, set by dancers in Texas, does not match their performance, as they have been dancing only three minutes every eight hours, while the Texans are said to have rested 15 minutes every four hours.

Munsey Buys Globe

New York, May 26.—Frank A. Munsey has purchased the New York Globe, it was announced today. The Globe is one of the oldest newspapers in the country. Mr. Munsey owns the New York Herald, the Sun, and the Evening Telegram.

Detroit Asks Ford for Further Loan of $8,000,000

Detroit, May 26.—Officials of Detroit are negotiating for the loan of more than $8,000,000 from the Ford Motor Company. It is understood if the deal goes through it will call for interest at 4 per cent., against the 5 per cent. which Wall Street always has demanded when lending money to Detroit.

Should Henry Ford agree to lend the additional $3,000,000 it may mean, according to city department heads, that Detroit will be freed definitely from the necessity of going to Wall Street to borrow money in future.

2-ALARM BLAZE IN HEART OF MALDEN

Two alarms were sounded for fire today in the Malden Grain Company's elevator in Bird court, on account of the location.

The elevator is within a stone's throw of Malden square and the business heart of the city. After the fire, which did $3,000 damage, investigation was begun to determine the cause. The elevator is a two and one-half story structure, housing about $7,500 worth of grain and valuable machinery.

The fire started in the elevator well near the endless chain hoisting machinery.

REGINALD McKENNA IN BRITISH CABINET

London, May 26.—It was announced that Reginald McKenna, who held high cabinet appointments under Premier Asquith as a Liberal, will join Premier Baldwin's cabinet. A London City seat will be found for McKenna, and in two or three months he will be made Chancellor of the Exchequer, the post held by Premier Baldwin.

BIG RUM FLEET IS RULED BY 54 MEN

New York, May 26.—Assistant United States Attorney Clarke today announced that Rex D. Sheldon, arrested in Norfolk in connection with rum smuggling off the Virginia capes, was the "most precious scoundrel" in the bootlegging case in which the Montague Brothers, society liquor dealers, were involved.

Norfolk, Va., May 26.Federal prohibition agents today were running down evidence of a gigantic liquor smuggling syndicate following the arrest here of William E. Baker, who they said had confessed that he was operating as agent for an organization controlling the fleet of rum runners which had been off the Virginia capes for the last week.

Burwell, self-styled "second in command of the Atlantic Coast Rum Fleet," his wife and Rex D. Sheldon, all of New York, were arrested at a hotel here.

The authorities said today they expected to round up members of a gigantic liquor-smuggling ring with important branches in New York, Canada, London, Scotland and the Bermudas. They said they had evidence that fifty-four men composed the syndicate, the majority of them representing large financial interests.

Burwell told prohibition authorities, they said, that the fleet was composed of four vessels—the Istar, the Cartana, the Strand Hill, and the schooner Mary Beatrice, all of them operating under the British flag.

PARAGON PARK OPENS FOR SEASON

The lid comes off Nantasket today. At 1 o'clock, with appropriate ceremonies, Paragon Park will throw open its gates for the 1923 season. President Albert A. Golden and Treasurer David Stone of the Paragon Park Company have rushed the restoration of the park so that hardly a trace of the fire remains. A new "scooter," the "million dollar" roller-coaster and the new $200,000 Palm Garden are features. A fireworks display and other features have been prepared for the opening day crowd.

Springfield—Five families were driven from their homes by a fire at No. 566 Worthington street, John Right was cut by falling glass when he entered the burning building to save his books.

FINDS OUSTING OF DITTEMORE ILLEGAL

Former Judge Frederic Dodge, appointed master to hear evidence in Christian Science Church litigation in progress since March, 1919, turned in his report today on that phase of the case affecting John V. Dittemore.

The report states that Dittemore was illegally removed as a director of the Christian Science Church, and that Mrs. Annie M. Knott, chosen to succeed him, has no legal claim to the position.

Following his dismissal, Dittemore brought suit for reinstatement. Among those interested in Christian Science his action was one not only for reinstatement, but subjected Mary Baker Eddy's plan for a church and connected agencies to a legal test.

CRITICISED HIS ASSOCIATES.

According to the present directorate of the church, Dittemore sought a decree from a civil court which would interpret and limit, and possibly render void, part of Mrs. Eddy's plans for carrying on the Christian Science movement.

In the report filed Mr. Dodge asserts that Mr. Dittemore's course of action for a considerable time prior to the date of his removal, was regarded with much disfavor by his associates, and that an element of personal feeling and hostility entered into the resolutions which brought about his dismissal.

The finding of the master brings out that Mr. Dittemore objected to his associates visiting a certain musical revue in New York, on the ground that it was an improper entertainment, and that he objected to certain utterances of his associates which he regarded as improper.

OBJECT TO REPORT.

Before the master's report was filed, the defendant directors submitted to Mr. Dodge their objections to it, which were filed at the same time. They positively denied that any criticism by them or the plaintiff had anything to do with their vote for his dismissal.

They objected to the report, as a whole, on the ground that it showed the adoption of improper procedure by the master, prejudicial to the defendants.

ARREST NEGRO FOR MOLESTING WOMAN

Daniel B. Janey, colored, living at 84 Heard street, Chelsea, was arrested by Chelsea police officers after an exciting chase during which the policeman fired several shots as Janey ran through backyards and hurdled fences along Walnut street. Janey is believed to be the man whose attempts to molest white women in the vicinity of Walnut and Fourth streets have kept the neighborhood in a state of fright for nearly two months. In Chelsea court he was charged with a statutory offence and held for a hearing in substantial bail.

PAINE, WEBBER'S CHIEFS ON TRIP

Fourteen managers of branch offices of Paine, Webber & Co., are in Boston today following a visit to New York and visit to the New York Stock Exchange, where all the mechanical workings of the Exchange and the execution of orders were explained. This is one of the periodical meetings of Paine, Webber's managerial organization and following conferences in Boston this morning they will adjourn to the North Shore home of W. A. Paine.

CIRCUS PARADE ON MONDAY STARTS AT 10

Boston's first and last circus parade of the year—Sells-Floto's—will leave the Huntington Avenue show grounds at 10 a. m., Monday and proceed to Huntington avenue, to Boylston street, to Tremont street, to Park, to Beacon to Charles, to Park square, to Boylston, to Huntington and to the grounds. It is the largest circus parade of America, and is distinctive in that all its cages and dens of wild animals are open to view.

REFUSE RAISE TO PHONE GIRLS

The New England Telephone and Telegraph Company, through General Manager George H. Dresser, today refused an increase in wages to the telephone operators.

The employes' demands, which, according to the company, range between $5 and $9, would mean an increase in operating costs of $5,000,000 to $6,000,000 a year, Dresser claims.

Equalization of wages in other departments, he declares, would mean an additional increase in costs of $10,000,000 annually.

In his statement to the Telephone operators' wage committee, Mr. Dresser says the company does not feel justified in meeting this added expense by folstering higher rates on subscribers.

He further points out that the company has not made any reduction in wage scales from the 1920 peak figure, although other concerns have reduced considerably from war time levels.

"FLO" SPURNS $50,000 OFFER OF STILLMAN

New York, May 26.—"James A. Stillman has never denied the paternity of our son. But after he deserted us a year ago he was so cowardly that he sought to be relieved of the 'moral responsibility' of having been a father out of wedlock, and he had his attorneys draw up a general release and offered me a 'bonus' of $50,000 to sign it.

"Of course I refused. I am going to fight and fight with all my might, Mrs. Stillman, who won the battle for her son Guy, advises me to fight like a tiger. Well, I am going to fight like all the tigers of the jungle for my baby."

RETURNS TO FLAT.

Suddenly abandoning her plan to go into retirement for a brief period, Mrs. Florence Leeds, co-respondent in the Stillman divorce action, returned to her Park avenue apartment and hurled this new gage of battle in the general direction of the banker.

Over the telephone, for she persistently refuses to see interviewers in person, Flo continued her publicity campaign. She asserted she welcomed the "support" of Mrs. Anne U. Stillman and would enter into active alliance with the "wife scorned." It is an alliance that holds all the emotional cohesion seldom witnessed behind the footlights and almost never in a case of this nature in real life.

THANKS MRS. STILLMAN.

Mrs. Leeds asserted:

"I have written a letter to Mrs. Stillman. A letter of thanks for her advice. I told her I could not, of course, give my baby into her care, but that I thought her offer to take and rear him a wonderful one."

Flo continued.

"James A. Stillman, when he turned from me to another woman, thought only of his own financial and moral responsibility. He cared nothing save for his own safety. He had his lawyer, Mr. Sullivan, draw up a general legal release.

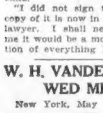
"I call it a 'moral release,' in which I was to absolve him from responsibility for everything that had happened. I was to say I would never sue him for little Jay's support.

"I don't suppose he cared whether he ever saw his son again. I don't suppose he had any of the feelings a father should shower upon his child.

"I did not sign that release. A copy of it is now in the hands of my lawyer. I shall never sign it. To me it would be a monstrous repudiation of everything I hold dear."

W. H. VANDERBILT TO WED MISS DAVIES

New York, May 26.—At a party at the home of Mrs. Frederick Martin Davies, No. 22 East Eighty-second street, the engagement was announced of her daughter, Emily O'Neil Davies, to William H. Vanderbilt, son of the late Alfred G. Vanderbilt, who lost his life on the Titanic.



Miss Davies.

Miss Davies is a graduate of Bryn Mawr. Mr. Vanderbilt is a graduate of Princeton and has just returned from an extended tour of the Orient. Only recently he reached the age of twenty-one, coming into possession of the fortune left by his father. His mother is Mrs. Paul PfeiSimmons of Newport.

SCOTLAND ALARMED BY INFLUX OF IRISH

London, May 26.—Ireland is invading Scotland in an unprecedented manner. The possibility of Scotland becoming more Irish than Scotch is causing no little anxiety in North Britain, of which the Hibernian immigrants seem to be rapidly taking possession by the process of peaceful penetration, according to a report which has been presented by a committee to the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland.

MASS MARRIAGES PLANNED IN ANGORA

TO WINNEPESAUKEE BY AUTOMOBILE

Map shows route from Boston for autoists to famous New Hampshire lake, where disciples of Izaak Walton may find rare pleasure in vacation time or for week-end trips. Lake Winnepesaukee is noted for its game fish of many varieties. Excellent catches of trout are reported from there daily.

KEEP READY FOR WAR, URGES DENBY

Newport, May 26.—Rear Admiral C. S. Williams, president of the Naval War College, said in an address today that a comparison of the British and American fleets showed "a marked superiority of the former in long-range gunfire and in fighting strength.

Newport, R. L., May 26.—Warning that the navy must be kept ready for defense "in a world full of menace," was given by Secretary Denby in an address today to the graduating class of the Naval War College.

At no time in the nation's history, he added, had there been greater need for "close study of naval science and earnest devotion to duty."

NAVAL STRENGTH NEEDED.

"It is a day when naval strength is vitally necessary and a full grasp by naval officers of world possibilities highly important," he continued. "We think in terms of hope for continued peace; we strive through diplomacy, backed by power, to keep that desired peace, but we must not be blind to facts.

WAR ALWAYS MENACES

"We know now, beyond pre-adventure, that war between great powers or groups of powers will always involve many other nations, and we cannot say with certainty that such a war may not come at any time. There need be no demand for excessive armament.

"There will be none for great increase of our present establishment made by the Navy Department at the coming session of Congress. We shall ask for additional cruisers allowed under the treaty for the limitation of armament.

TO ASK FOR GUNBOATS.

"We shall ask for additional light draft gunboats, the vital need of which is being demonstrated every day; and we shall ask for certain submarines and airplanes.

"There will be nothing extravagant in our recommendations to Congress, and we hope to be able to keep the proposed appropriations approximately within the limits reached last year.

"While we do not anticipate the need of a great building program, we do realize that what we have must be in constant readiness for effective use."

MECCA FOR N. E. FISHERMEN IN N. H. LAKE

Anglers who desire a good day's fishing will do well to try spring-fed Lake Winnepesaukee, N. H., situated in "the Switzerland of America."

This lovely lake is 109 miles from Boston and makes an excellent week-end trip for the fisherman who wishes to combine angling with motoring. It may also be reached by Boston & Maine Railroad.

Excellent catches of lake trout are being reported daily. Good catches of yellow perch, shad (white fish) and some salmon are also reported. Lake trout are caught on troll, copper wire being used by most of the anglers who go there. Live minnows are the best bait. As the trout are now on the sands, from 150 to 200 feet of copper wire is necessary for trolling.

The record trout from Winnepesaukee was a 27-pounder caught by Captain Pierce of The Weirs, N. H., owner of the famous motor boat "The Satisfaction." This trout was mounted and is now displayed in The Tavern at Laconia, N. H. The average trout weigh from three to six or seven pounds and these give excellent sport. Six trout to a boat is the limit.

Many landlocked salmon weighing from eight to ten pounds each are caught in Winnepesaukee, 250,000 of these fine fish, having been liberated there in recent years. The largest taken from this lake weighed 27 pounds. These, too, are caught on troll, with live minnows.

Yellow perch weighing up to one and one-half pounds are being caught. Many weighing one pound are caught.

Wonderful small-mouth black bass fishing may be had beginning July 1 when the law goes off. These are caught chiefly with minnows, crawfish, helgramites, frogs and "night-walkers."

Readers of the Boston American desiring to fish in Winnepesaukee may obtain special fishing motor boats, row boats and tackle by writing to Jim Erwin of The Weirs, N. H. If they wish a capable guide to row a boat or show them the best fishing grounds they should get in touch with Arthur Brock or Edward Grob at The Weirs.

CAPT. HANSEN DYING AFTER EXPLOSION

Copenhagen, May 26.—Captain Gottfried Hansen, the Arctic explorer, associated with Captain Amundsen in his polar expeditions, was among the wounded by the explosion of a bomb on board the Danish light cruiser Gejser during naval manoeuvres south of the island Zealand today. He is not expected to recover.

FIRST NATIONAL IN BIG BANK MERGER

The International Trust Company will be merged with the First National Bank some time next week.

The combined institutions will have a combined capitalization of $200,000,000.

The executive committee of the directors of the trust company have voted to recommend to the full board the acceptance of an offer from the First National to consolidate.

The First National will pay $320 a share for International Trust stock, half in cash and half in stock of the First National.

This was made possible by reliable First National by some of the larger First National by some of the larger stockholders, which they are selling for the purpose of consolidation at $320 a share.

The market price of the First National stock recently has been in vicinity of this figure, while the International Trust shares have been quoted at $310 a share.

The purpose of the merger is said to provide a Boston banking institution comparable with the largest banks of the country so as betetr to care for the financial and commercial needs of New England, it was said by interested parties.

GRIPPING THRILLS IN "COVERED WAGON"

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

GETTING away to a Summer season in the theatres that has had no remotely approaching parallel in years, the week just ending reveals two highly impressive attractions, which, with even ordinary breaks in the temperature and public interest, should remain until the dust is on the leaves and the bright green of Spring begins to fade.

AMERICAN HISTORY SHOWN IN THIS "FILM."

"THE COVERED WAGON" at the Majestic, with a twenty-four hour start on "The Rise of Rosie O'Reilly," has caught playgoers by the eyes with its astonishing photography of the far reaching stretches of the great West and its reproductions of the caravans that crossed the plains in the forties. It has been said that "The Covered Wagon" offers but slight dramatic interest and that its action, as represented by individual romances and emotions, lacks the gripping quality so necessary in popular films. This can hardly be true, for there is romance aplenty in the sheer bigness of the picture, with its winding wagon trains and its graphic picture of the hardy courage of the men and women who so bravely laid the foundation of the greater nation. No more impressive picture has ever been thrown upon the screen, and no greater appeal has ever been made to the patriotic emotions of the people of a nation than is reflected in this stirring drama of our own forbears. Curiously enough, the noisiest response from the paying side of the house comes early in the picture, when its dedication to Theodore Roosevelt is flashed upon the screen. This may be a timely bit of theatricalism for box office purposes, but it drives straight home into every throbbing heart. By linking Roosevelt's name with this marvelous spectacle of pioneer days the producers have hit upon an appeal that cannot be resisted. Without this dedication "The Covered Wagon" would be a picture every true hearted American ought to see, but with it there comes an added thrill that no other name could produce. "The Covered Wagon," more than any picture or book could reveal, shows America in the making. We are all profiting by the hardship and determination of the pioneers of '48, which is so faithfully and dramatically revealed in this production.

Ernest Torrence, not so much to look upon, but highly engaging in "The Covered Wagon."

CARRIES FAMOUS NAME TO NEW HONORS.

THAT not all of the interest in high temperature entertainment is centred in theatres of higher prices, it may be remarked that Mr. Tom Henry's playhouse, the Gayety, and Mr. Waldron's Casino are not only doing very well but are finding it difficult to supply sufficient capacity to meet the current demand for the wares they are dispensing. At the Gayety, the very comical "Bozo" finds himself sharing honors with a young woman, whose principal claim to popularity is good looks, a stunning figure and an ability to put over a song. She is Gertrude Hayes, Jr., a descendant of the theatre, for her aunt, for whom she was named, kept all the boys of yesterday guessing during her long period of activity in burlesque. The younger woman has advantages that speak for themselves. It was a great help, for example, to have a talented aunt to admire and to emulate; it was a still greater help to have for a devoted and loving uncle the man who produced and owns "Follies of the Day." The two things just naturally fitted together and Miss Hayes had no difficulty in making a demonstration of her art before a friendly try-out audience. Naturally, the fact that she carries more good looks than is ordinarily allotted to one woman did not serve as a handicap in her struggle for primary distinction on the stage. In any event, she had her chance and made the most of it, which may be taken as a good and safe reason why she is a featured member of the "Follies of the Day." Uncle Barney may own the show, but little Gertrude is required to perform her full duty at all times.

Gertrude Hayes, Jr., who has added new laurels to famous name in burlesque.

"MOLLY DARLING" GETS REAL CHANCE AT LAST.

THE return of "Molly Darling" next week sets up a new record in booking office shuffling. For the third time in a single season an attraction comes back to town, and there is nothing in theatre records to show that anything like this has ever happened before. Plays have made two trips into the village in one season, but never three. It was an odd freak of booking that limited "Molly Darling" to short engagements in its two previous visits. Previous contracts for local theatres made a sad victim of this strong attraction, which might have remained at the Tremont for many weeks if its original time could have been extended. With the regular season in a state of collapse the piece comes to the Colonial with all the time available it can profitably use. This time it will stick to the finish.

NEXT WEEK'S NEW BILLS

WILBUR—"Liza," an all-colored musical show that has kept New York interested for six months. Irving C. Miller wrote the book and Maceo Pinkard did the lyrics and music. It is announced as a dancing and singing comedy, and boasts of a company of seventy people. There will be a midnight performance on Thursday.

* * *

ST. JAMES—"The Man Who Came Back," by Jules Eckert Goodman; a melodrama of modern life, based on a short story by John Fleming Wilson. It is announced for an indefinite stay. During its early career the play remained at a downtown theatre for nineteen weeks. The leading roles will be played by Adelyn Bushnell and Walter Gilbert.

COLONIAL—"Molly Darling"—not exactly a new attraction, but returning for the third time, with hopes of renewed popularity. Jack Donahue, the shifty dancer, who graduated from Charlestown to the Broadway stage, remains at the head of the cast. This visit is expected to last well into the Summer.

* * *

B. F. KEITH'S (vaudeville)—Miss Bobby Folsom and Jack Denny, with their Metropolitan orchestra, is given the desired position at the head of the bill. Another popular local feature will be the appearance of Mary Young in a comedy sketch. Other acts are Dooley and Sales, in "Will Yer, Jim"; Emilie Lea, an acrobatic dancer; Willie Solar and a half-dozen others.

LOIS WILSON and J. WARREN KERRIGAN in "THE COVERED WAGON"—MAJESTIC

MARGARET SIMMS in "LIZA"—WILBUR

WALTER GILBERT and ADELYN BUSHNELL in "THE MAN WHO CAME BACK"—ST. JAMES.

NINA PENN in "MOLLY DARLING" COLONIAL

EMILIE LEA AT KEITH'S

JULIANNE GAUBERT in "THE MONSTER"—PLYMOUTH

MIDGIE GIBBONS in "JINGLE COOPER'S BLACK AND WHITE SHOW"—WALDRON'S CASINO

VAUDEVILLE AND PICTURES

ORPHEUM—"Fog Bound," an Irvin Willat production starring Dorothy Dalton. The vaudeville section will contain Jack Osmop's Revue, which tops the bill; also Emily Darrell, comedienne; Jordan, Sexton and company in a comedy sketch; Dunlay and Merrill in "Much Ado About Nothing"; and Stevens and Brunelle. There will be news and comedy films.

LOEW'S STATE—"Driven," a photoplay featuring Charles Emmett Mack and Elinor Fair. It is a story of the Blue Ridge Mountains. Another film will be "Her Fatal Millions," with Viola Dana. It is a rollicking comedy. Included in the program will be a late comedy and a news reel.

MODERN AND BEACON—Ethel Clayton in "Can a Woman Love Twice" and Dustin Farnum in the William Fox production, "Backing the Barrier." Also news and comedy reels.

OLYMPIA—Dorothy Phillips in "Slander the Woman," a picture of the Canadian Northwest. Also five acts of vaudeville.

CENTRAL SQUARE—Richard Barthelmess in "The Bright Shawl" for three days. Also several acts of vaudeville.

CAPITOL—Dorothy Phillips in "Slander the Woman," and Lige Conley in the comedy, "Hold Tight."

LANCASTER—"Brass" headed by Monte Blue, for three days. Beginning Thursday, "The Abysmal Brute."

PARK—"Lost in a Big City," with Jane Thomas, John Lowell and ruby Ivy Ward; also "Man and Wife," in which a notable cast will be seen, including Gladys Leslie, Robert Eliot, Maurice Costello and Norma Shearer. A new Eddie Lyons comedy, "For the Love of Tut," will also be shown.

HOWARD—(Burlesque) Second and final week of "Follow Me," an all-colored musical affair that is filled with melody and syncopation. Also vaudeville and news comedy reels. A special midnight performance will be given on Tuesday.

CODMAN SQUARE—Norma Talmadge in "Within the Law," and Robert Gordon and Tully Marshall in "The Super Sex." For three days only.

SCOLLAY SQUARE — Thomas Meighan in "The Never Do Well," picturized from a Rex Beach novel. Also several vaudeville features and news and comedy reels.

STRAND—"The Go Getter," a stirring Cosmopolitan production from a Peter B. Kyne story; also Tom Mix in "Three Jumps Ahead." The bill will change on Thursday.

BOSTON—"Blazing Barriers," a photoplay of the timber country. Also vaudeville headed by Joe Freed and Al Harrison in "City Life."

BOWDOIN SQUARE—"Hunting Big Game in Africa," a film of the jungle, and Charles Ray in "The Girl I Loved."

Stage Manager Has Many Important Duties

Just what is meant by a stage director is the thing unknown to a majority of those who attend the theatre, but the two words have an important ring, and in fact, the position is an important one. Frank McCormack, stage director of "The Monster," at the Plymouth, has passed many notable productions, among which are "Very Good Eddie," "Chu Chin Chow," and both the screen and the stage version of "Experience." The stage director's position demands that he should thoroughly study the "script after it has been handed to him by the author, and understand its various phases; the positions taken by the actors during each and every situation; the exits, entrances, the best mode of gaining effect, the most successful method of "getting it over."

Secretary of Labor John J. Davis saw "The Covered Wagon" in Chicago recently and expressed to John C. Flinn the desire that the 7,000,000 aliens, as well as all Americans, should see it. "It is a splendid revelation," Mr. Davis said, "of the courage and fortitude of the men and women who made America."

Wagner Program for Sunday Pops

Agide Jacchia and the symphony orchestra at the Pops in Symphony Hall will present music of wide interest during the fourth week of their season, which opens tomorrow night with the second of the Sunday concerts and an All Wagner program.

Tomorrow night the following excerpts from Wagner's music dramas will be performed:

Rienzi Overture.
Tannhauser—Bacchanale, "The Bill of Venus."
Tristan and Isolde, "Love Death," Act III.
Lohengrin Fantasia.
Die Meistersinger of Nuremberg, Prelude, Quintet, Entrance of the Knights into the "Temple to the Grail," Act I.
Siegfried, "Forest Murmurs," Act II.
The Valkyrie, Magic Fire Music, Act III.

SELWYN CLOSES

The Selwyn Theatre closes its regular season tonight with the farewell performance of "The Fool." The Selwyns have had but six attractions this season and in all has had a season of forty-three weeks, as follows: "Shuffle Along," fifteen weeks; "It's a Boy," two weeks; "Down to the Sea in Ships," four weeks; "The Rear Car," three weeks; Pauline Frederick in "The Guilty One," four weeks, and "The Fool," fifteen weeks.

PLAYS THAT REMAIN

Who's Who and What's What at the Theatres, With a Line or Two About the Current Attractions.

By NICHOLAS YOUNG.

"The Monster" at the Plymouth. (Fifth week.) The final word in the shock drama. In ten minutes after the rise of the curtain the chills will be doing a Marathon up and down your spine.

"The Rise of Rosie O'Reilly" at the Tremont. (Second week.) Mr. Cohan's most ambitious attempt at musical comedy. The brightest and most colorful song and dance show of the year.

"Follies of the Day" at the Gayety. (Fourth week.) The voiceless comedian "Bozo," sharing honors with Gertrude Hayes, Jr., in the snappiest burlesque entertainment of several seasons.

Jimmie Cooper's "Black and White Show" at Waldron's Casino. (Fifth week.) A combination of melody, mirth and dancing that keeps Hanover street crowded from noon to midnight.

"The Covered Wagon" at the Majestic. (Second week.) Emerson Hough's great novel of the Oregon trail reproduced in picture form. A vivid spectacle of an empire in the making.

"Westbound Limited" at Tremont Temple. (Second week.) Romance and thrills worked into a stirring photoplay of railroad life. Many exciting situations, but everything ends happily.

Keith Headliner Child Actress in Orient

Emilie Lea, musical comedy favorite and the headliner at B. F. Keith's next week, was born to the stage, and when other children were lisping their ABC's she was touring the Orient with her father's company, and appearing by request before the royal families of India, China and Japan.

On her father's side Miss Lea belongs to the true American aristocracy. She is a direct descendent of Daniel Boone. Furthermore, she is one of the "Lee's of Virginia," to which family General Robert E. Lee belonged. The spelling of the name has been changed through some litigation in a past generation. Miss Lea's mother was a French ballet dancer, trained in the best traditions of the Italian classic school. Her father so far forgot his family connections as to become the most famous high kicker and eccentric dancer south of the Mason and Dixon Line.

SOMERVILLE PLAYERS

The coming week will be good-bye week at the Somerville Theatre. For this occasion the Somerville Players will present Eleanor Gates' "We Are Seven," satire on the present day eugenic craze. On Saturday evening "Good-bye Night," the "lid" will be off and the members of the company will be allowed to "make-up" and play the part assigned them in their own way. Much comedy is expected to be injected into the performance.

PEMBERTON OPENS

The Pemberton Hotel and Inn opens today for the season of 1923. The natural location of this property, which is practically surrounded by water, and only thirty-five minutes from Boston by boat, makes it one of the most distinctive dining and dancing resorts on the New England coast. The California Ramblers, an orchestra recently on the Keith circuit, has been engaged for the season.

ST. MARY'S BENEFIT

An all-star concert will be given at the Colonial theatre tomorrow night in the interest of St. Mary's Infant Asylum. Among those who will appear are Virginia O'Brien of "The Rise of Rosie O'Reilly"; Jack Donahue, dancing comedian of "Molly Darling"; Crane Wilbur and Suzanne Caubet of "The Monster."

FORMER IDOL OF THE SCREEN RETURNS

Maurice Costello, whose name is known to every movie fan in the world, and who was not so very long ago the idol of the screen, has, for the past two years, been missed by his countless admirers wherever pictures are shown. It will, therefore, be a welcome surprise to them to learn that Mr. Costello has returned to the silver sheet upon which he scored so many triumphs and through which he brought so much entertainment and happiness to thousands of people.

You may recall the thrill you got when you saw your first picture of more than one reel; how you gasped when, after seeing one whole long reel of film, a slide was flashed on the screen with the astounding inscription: "One Minute Please to Change Reels; Part Two Will Follow Immediately." How you nudged your sweetheart or your neighbor, and gave voice to your astonishment and appreciation in excited tones. It is more than likely that the picture was "A Tale of Two Cities," an old Vitagraph production and one of the first "four-part" pictures to reach the screen. It was in this picture that Maurice Costello scored his first big triumph.

Those were the days when Vitagraph, Biograph and one or two smaller companies controlled the entire industry—even before anyone had ever heard of Keystone Kops or Charlie Chaplin.

Enough to fill a thousand pages has happened to the industry since the days when Maurice Costello, the "grand old man of the movies," first began to delight audiences—and now he is back!

He plays the part of the father of a wayward girl in "Man and Wife," a feature production that will begin a week's engagement at the Park next Monday.

'ROSIE O'REILLY' COULD HARDLY BE BETTER

LIFE'S GREAT THRILL IN PREMIER

Dorothy Dalton, who will be seen at Loew's Orpheum next week in "Fog Bound," recently was asked by an interviewer to describe her greatest thrill. "I think that the biggest thrill of my life," she answered, "was the opening night of 'Aphrodite,' in New York several years ago. Before me was the prospect of starring in one of the biggest and most spectacular plays ever shown on Broadway. Although I had done some work on the stage before beginning my motion picture career, I had never had the privileges of doing anything quite so magnificent as this. There were the glorious setting and effects, lights, music, a wonderful cast of trained artists and a packed audience. My reception was wonderful, the flowers were gorgeous and I did my part without any trouble. It seemed the supreme moment of my life—the big triumph of my career!"

STATE BALLROOM

Dancing to good music in an atmosphere made cool by the latest devices, is the treat that greets the patronage at the State ballroom at the regular dansants on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evenings of each week. Lambert Brothers' Orchestra furnishes the music.

NORUMBEGA PARK

The new season at Norumbega Park will open tomorrow and visitors will find many new attractions and added beauties to this engaging garden spot on the Charles River. Among the new features will be a reproduction of old King Tut's tomb in the Luxor Valley. The many buildings about the park have been redecorated, including the restaurant, which will be operated on a Chauve Souris plan that should prove popular. Free band concerts will be given both afternoon and evening.

BATTLE OF MUSIC

An unusual program has been arranged for Monday evening at Nutlings-on-the-Charles, when a battle of music will be staged between Paul Whiteman's Pavilion Royal orchestra and the Lambert Brothers' State Ballroom orchestra. The Whiteman orchestra is considered one of the best of New York's musical organizations.

WHERE AUTOISTS WILL FIND DETOURS ON THEIR WEEK END TRIPS

FULL DIRECTIONS THAT WILL AID DRIVERS

By C. F. DONNOCKER,
Automobile Editor.

Because of the severe weather last Winter and Spring many main roads in Massachusetts were badly damaged and are now being repaired. For the purpose of saving time for motorists, the Boston American today prints a list of the places where detours are necessary.

The detours, now in effect, follow:

AMESBURY-EXETER ROUTE

Amesbury, Exeter Road — Three-quarters of a mile under construction. Road closed to through travel. Detour 3.2 miles. Gravel road, in fair condition. Completion expected June 1, 1923.

ASHFIELD ROUTE

Spruce Corner Road—Length under construction, 8,500 feet. Road open to travel, subject to slight delays. Completion expected June 1, 1923.

AYER-LEOMINSTER ROUTE

FLAMING YOUTH

What becomes of a flapper who trades all for the "thrills"? Find out, commencing in Monday's, June 4th, American.

ASK MR. FIX-IT

Dear Mr. Fix-It—I have a model "E" Ford touring car and after running in high cannot shift to second or first until I bring car to a stop. My clutch throws out clear from fly wheel and I have used all adjustments to correct this. Can information you can give me in the American will appreciate it.

Weymouth.

There is a small cast iron plate which acts as a clutch brake. As this is softer than the clutch it would naturally wear out. This plate in your clutch brake has seen to such an extent that it no longer functions and consequently your clutch spins, making it almost impossible to shift your gears. Have a new clutch brake put in and your troubles will be over.

Dear Mr. Fix-It—Kindly tell me how I can stop my Ford (a 1921 sedan) from "whistling" in high speed. I have recommended it be retimed, but after a thorough investigation, using two wheels and a generator, tightening up also "whimmies" just as tod as every one.

G. F. A.

The cap "whimmies" on account of the play of the crankshaft. This can be corrected by adjusting your radius rods. Loosen up the front end of your radius rods and the ball rods forward and tighten up the rods again. If you are not careful, too much play in this will be necessary to tip the axle farther from the U. S. A. Ford using fabric. Also see that your front wheels toe in from ¼ to ¾ of an inch, and that all your steering connections are tight.

Dear Mr. Fix-It—As I am thinking of going to Los Angeles this Summer with my auto, I am asking you for advice regarding the best route to take. I was thinking of the Lincoln highway. Do you know if that highway is completed all the way across and can you tell me where I can procure a set of this route, etc? Thanking you very much, I am,

C. E. C.

Swampscott.

We understand that the Lincoln highway is not completed all the way. There are three routes across. Would suggest that you get in touch with the A. A. A. in this city or get some good route book that has a transcontinental edition.

FIRESTONE CO. QUITS RUBBER ASSOCIATION

Announcement was made yesterday at the Washington office of Harvey S. Firestone, president of the Firestone Tire & Rubber Company, of the company's resignation as a member of the Rubber Association of America.

The letter of resignation, signed by Mr. Firestone and addressed to A. L. Viles, general manager of the Rubber Association of America, very plainly states the reasons for the company's withdrawal from the national organization. Parts of Mr. Firestone's letter follow:

"In behalf of the Firestone Tire & Rubber Company I hereby tender, for the attention of your board of directors, this resignation as a member of the Rubber Association of America. This action is taken only after mature consideration and with the greatest reluctance. The failure of your organization to cope with the major problems of the association, especially the crisis created by the Rubber Restriction Act, has impelled this action.

FAILURE TO ACT.

"In the beginning this company called your attention to the laws and has ever since urged you to action. Months have elapsed—the rubber growers have reported urging more strict enforcement of the laws. Nothing has been accomplished.

"Feeling this would be the result, we have been doing everything in our power to bring about a protest to the British government through the proper channels available. We have not had your co-operation.

"The United States government has recognized the problem as vital, affecting both our peace prosperity and war security, and has appropriated a substantial fund for the investigation of a safe and adequate source of supply.

NO CHOICE REMAINS.

"This company desires to do everything in its power to further this worthy project and to continue the agitation for the repeal of the British laws, but when you employ the hands of the association—a substantial portion of which this company contributes—to actively oppose the systematic and continued publicity our efforts to secure the repeal of the laws and better conditions for the rubber industry and the consumers of rubber products, there apparently remains no choice.

"It is with great regret that the writer notifies you of this decision. Especially in view of the fact he had the honor of being president of the organization during the reconstruction period, and has always had in mind the high purpose for the good of the industry and the American public it might serve."

50 DISABLED VETS IN FORD HOSPITAL

Disabled World War veterans of Michigan have welcomed the offer recently made by the Henry Ford Hospital and already more than fifty are undergoing treatment at the big institution.

All of the veterans are admitted in the same manner as private patients and are treated on exactly the same basis. They are entitled to and receive the same quality of service and are distributed in the various units of the hospital according to the availability of rooms.

Arrangements for opening the hospital services free of any charge to all disabled veterans of Michigan needing treatment were made a few weeks ago at a meeting between Alvin M. Owsley, National Commander of the American Legion; Henry Ford, Edsel B. Ford, president of the Ford Motor Company, and Dr. Harkness, State Commander of the American Legion. The arrangements for the care of the disabled veterans continues in effect until December 31, 1923.

TEMPLAR CAR WINS IN ECONOMY RUN

The Boston Templar Company received a telegram from Los Angeles stating that the Templar won the Southern annual Los Angeles-Yosemite economy run for the fourth time in succession in its class. It defeated all four-cylinder cars and was second for the sweepstakes. The sweepstakes cup is open to all cars regardless of number of cylinders, weight or cost.

In this 360-mile run over six mountain ranges the Templar averaged 20.1 miles per gallon of gas. This race was held under the sanction and supervision of the American Automobile Association.

$40,000 VERDICT GIVEN TO DISABLED SEAMAN

Washington, May 26.—Johnnie Murphy, an ordinary seaman, whose trip on the Shipping Board freighter Conehatta in the Summer of 1921 ended disastrously for him, was awarded a verdict of $40,000 damages against the board by a jury in Circuit Court No. 2 for personal injuries. This is probably the largest amount ever awarded for personal injuries in the local courts. Murphy was struck by a beam which fell into a hold of the freighter into which he had descended to work. The claim was made that Murphy will never be able to work again.

'LATEX' IS NAME FOR LIQUID RUBBER

The word "latex" is likely soon to take its place among the well-known words of the English language. Latex is the correct name for the liquid form in which rubber comes from the rubber tree.

Rubber is now being transported to this country from the East Indies in the form of latex, instead of in the blocks and sheets known in the rubber business since the beginning of its history. Tank cars for latex will soon be a familiar sight on the railroads.

WHITE LIQUID.

Latex is a white liquid. Wherever the bark of the rubber tree is cut, the fluid runs forth, possibly as plan of nature's to heel the wound in the same manner as blood comes from a cut on our bodies. This juice is not the sap of the tree. Sap flows through the wood, but latex is contained in an inner bark, a thin layer directly beneath the outer bark.

As is commonly known, most of the rubber of the world today comes from vast plantations in the Far East. Close to $500,000,000 has been invested in these plantations, the largest single plantation being that owned by the United States Rubber Company.

CHANGES FORM.

One of the chief problems involved in bringing rubber to this country in the form of latex grew out of the fact that latex changes its form quickly after it has been taken from the tree. It has been discovered that it will remain sweet if ammonia or some other preservatives are added to it in correct proportions.

EUROPEAN LINERS WARNED OF ICEBERGS

Washington, May 26.—A special warning to shipping in the North Atlantic was broadcasted by the Naval Hydrographic office which has received reports from coast guard cutters on ice patrol that ice floes and icebergs have drifted unusually far south and across both the east-bound and west-bound traffic lanes.

POPPY DRIVE OF VETERANS BIG SUCCESS

Officials of the Veterans of Foreign Wars are greatly pleased with the result of the Poppy Drive in Boston this far, and express the possibility that the city's quota, $6,000, will be oversubscribed.

Brigadier General John H. Dunn, commenting upon the significance of the poppy, declared that it symbolizes the sacrifices which the American soldiers made during the war.

"The American soldier will never forget the crimson token of the Flanders poppy," the general said. "The red symbolizes the blood of the boys who made the supreme sacrifice."

Liquor Trial Costs $10,000

Gary, Ind., May 26.—The cost of preparing the records of the Gary liquor conspiracy trial for use in the appeal of the cases of forty-two of the defendants will be approximately $10,000.

QUERIES ON OUTINGS

Are you planning a hiking, fishing or camping trip? If so, the Boston American will gladly help you solve your problems connected therewith. Address all communications to "Outing Editor, Boston American, No. 80 Summer street, Boston (8) Mass."

If your questions relate to hotel, railroad or steamboat reservations or routes, they should be addressed to "Hotel & Travel Editor, Boston American."

Q.—I would like to take my wife and three children for a week-end trip over the Mohawk Trail. Will you kindly tell me where we could camp out on Saturday night if we take this trip. M. E. NEWTON.

A.—Good camp sites are obtainable at Gardner, Springfield, Northampton and Pittsfield. Of course it will be necessary for you to take your own tent. Excellent water and stoves for cooking are provided at these places.

Q.—I am very fond of mountain brook fishing but being a comparative stranger in New England, do not know any good place to go. Will you please tell me of some place where I can catch some trout and enjoy good scenery at the same time? G. G., Back Bay.

A.—Tarring caught mountain brook trout up to 1¾ pounds in Zealand River, which lies in the Rosebrook chain of the White Mountains, N. H., recommend it highly. It is an unusually picturesque mountain stream, flowing with massive boulders and madly rushing water. The surrounding mountains are a delight to the eye. Write John Whalen, Rosebrook Inn, Twin Mountain, N. H., for detailed information. John knows all there is to know about that section and there is no finer gentlemen in the mountains than he. May and June are ideal months in that section.

Q.—If I take a week-end trip to view the beauties of Cape Cod, will it be possible for me to camp out? —J. B., Allston.

A.—Although there are no regular camp sites on the Cape, many farmers will accommodate you. Be sure to leave no debris behind. Leave the spot you camp on just as clean as when you arrived. Keep the golden rule in active practice.

Q.—For several weeks some friends and I have been talking about taking a hike through the White Mountains. Can you inform me as to how we may obtain a good map, showing trails, etc.—W. A., Milton.

A.—Write to United States Forester, Gorham, N. H. Also get in touch with the Appalachian Mountain Club, No. 5 Joy street, Boston, Mass.

Q.—Are there any ponds or lakes near Boston where one can go for a few hours pickerel or bass fishing? —T. S., East Boston.

A.—Yes, but like all ponds and lakes near large cities they are pretty well fished. You might try Houghton's Pond in the Blue Hill Reservation, where I have known of bass up to four pounds being taken, or Ponkapoag pond, about a mile beyond. I know an East Milton young man who caught a five-pound, two ounce pickerel in Ponkapoag pond. It will be necessary to fish from the reservation shore, as Ponkapoag shore is owned by private individuals. Don't forget that the law will continue on bass until July 1 in Massachusetts. Pickerel may be taken now.

Q.—Salt water fishing appeals to me. Can you tell me where I can catch sea perch and tom-cod within a short distance of Boston.—L. A., Malden.

A.—Yes, off the rocks at Magnolia, near the reef of Norman's Woe, made famous by Longfellow in his poem, "The Wreck of the Hesperus."

HISTORY ALL ALONG CAPE AUTO TOUR

By H. E. CASEY

A most delightful and interesting motor trip is the first one of the week-end series published today for American readers making a complete tour of quaint Cape Cod. As the writer has covered almost every motor road on the Cape it is safe to say that the roads are practically in very good condition.

Occasionally you will find a few rough spots but not enough to warrant saying that any of the roads are poor—although at West Bridgewater construction work is going on and there is a slight detour going from Chatham to West Dennis. This detour being over hard, sandy roads, the tourist need not worry only for slight dust.

The route is: Boston to Nantasket, Scituate, Brant Rock, Duxbury, Plymouth, Sagamore, Orleans, Wellfleet, Provincetown, Hyannis, Falmouth Heights, Wood's Hole, parking machine at Pensance Garage. A boat trip to the Islands and return en route by automobile to Falmouth on to Wareham, Marion, Bridgewater, Boston.

HISTORIC SITES.

The Cape Cod trip all along the way is one where the tourist can enjoy the delights of the country and refreshing breezes of the seashore. The historical sites throughout are spotted with beautiful monuments that mark different eras of the Pilgrims' first hardships in New England.

The allurements are so many and varied that it holds charm for all sorts of visitors. Most of the enjoyment of Cape Cod life comes of contact with the sturdy folks who live there. Cape Cod mannerisms and sayings are sure to delight the visitor and you will find a closer intimacy between the visitor and the native of Cape Cod than in any other sections of the East.

The bathing along the Cape is excellent, as the water is of agreeable temperature, especially in the early part of June. The long white, hard sandy beaches are unsurpassed for both surf and stillwater bathing.

HOTELS FOR EVERY PURSE

The Cape hotels—from the modest Wayside Inn, whose cook is famous for his broiled lobster and roast chicken, to the most luxurious of modern hostelries—are the pride of the Cape. Accommodations for every purse and catering to every taste are at the will of the motorist. You will find mostly beautiful macadamized roads.

Starting at the Besconsfield Hotel going South on Beacon street to Kenmore square sharp turn right, straight ahead meeting car track. At car track turn right on Jamaicaway or start at Copley square west to Commonwealth avenue, to Kenmore square at fork to road turn left straight ahead meeting car track turn right to Jamaicaway.

Milton—Turn left with car tracks straight ahead through East Milton, bearing right into Quincy square—turn left following car tracks passing Fore River shipyards, straight ahead over bridge into Hingham (harbor on left), bearing left at four corners straight ahead to Nantasket to Pemberton.

NANTASKET DELIGHTS.

At Nantasket one of the big attractions is the fine beach with its hard, sandy white shore where one may enjoy the delights of wonderful surf bathing.

Biggest and best equipped of Nantasket's dining and entertainment resorts is Sherry Garden, formerly the Villa Napoli, which will be opened tonight. Frank McPeake, the noted New York hotel man, who made so popular a success as host at Pemberton Inn two years ago, is in charge of this new addition to the notable South Shore attractions.

In preparing Shore Gardens for the lovers of dancing, good dinners and outdoor pastimes, Mr. McPeake caused the old Villa Napoli to be improved on an extensive scale. There was no need of improving the site itself, high up on the hill south of Nantasket, directly off the main boulevard overlooking one of the most picturesque stretches of seashore on the New England coast. The improvements came largely in the building, the dining hall being enlarged to accommodate nearly 1,000 guests, with a score of large booths for semi-private parties. In the big dining hall there will be entertainments every night, provided by an up-to-date orchestra and popular singers.

Model baseball and tennis grounds, Gardens for a day's outing, and extensive parking space for automobiles, mark some of the outdoor attractions. All in all, the improvements which make Shore Gardens one of the largest and most modern outing places in this part of the country cost in the vicinity of $40,000.

THE RUN TO PLYMOUTH.

Leaving Shore Gardens on right to meet the requirements of organizations of all sorts visiting Shore turn left Warwick Inn, a charming place for the motorists who wish to partake of the festive cuisine of excellence and enjoy the terpsichorean art on the polished floor to snappy music. Straight ahead turn left on Jerusalem road through Cohasset Hillside Inn on right—up hill straight ahead to North Scituate; cross railroad tracks straight ahead to Egypt. At four corners bear right, straight ahead, after garage on right bear right on main highway to Marshfield Hills. Turn left and keep right Sea View Sta. to Marshfield Centre; straight ahead down grade.

At Marshfield postoffice on left cross railroad track and straight ahead to Brant Rock. Return to Marshfield postoffice cross tracks at square, turn left on main highway straight ahead to Duxbury, then straight ahead. At three corners keep straight to the left; is the Miles Standish Monument, passing the Waycroft Inn on right straight ahead; at fork in road bear left on side road to Hill Crest Inn. On the south side of Captains Hill and Miles Standish Monument, overlooking Plymouth and Kingston Bay, is a short beautiful drive off the main road. Walter Smith, proprietor, makes a specialty of chicken and lobster dinners, and has a quiet homelike restful inn which generally appeals to the tired motorist for relaxation.

CATERS TO TOURISTS.

Straight on over canal bridge, turning left, Sagamore Inn on right, catering to tourists. There is also a beautiful tea room where they serve lunches, salads and tea. Straight ahead, Daniel Webster Inn. The Daniel Webster Inn, an old-fashioned inn, one of the historic landmarks of the Cape with many quaint, old-fashioned fireplaces and antique furnishings. Chicken and lobster dinners are always ready for the tourist. Straight ahead State road right through to Sandwich Straight road through Bernstable, Yarmouth to Dennis. Big sign on left bearing to Nobscussett Hotel.

Here is an old but newly furnished hotel located on a high bluff overlooking Cape Cod Bay with at least a mile of sea front. Several cottages are in connection with the hotel. The property includes about 225 acres. All forms of entertainments are here. The cuisine is very fine. There is a beautiful panorama of Cape Cod Bay.

Straight road to Brewster postoffice. On left cross railroad; Orleans at four corners straight ahead, a sharp turn left and at second four corners keep straight ahead. Eastham Town Hall on right, straight road to Wellfleet and Truro—about thirty miles of sandy country but fine roads to Provincetown.

The Monument House is centrally located, only a short walk from the Monument and in walking distance of all points of interest. A special dining hall has been added serving shore dinners.

THE RETURN TRIP

Return by the same route to Orleans, sharp turn left of drug store and straight road Chatham. At Chatham three corners turn left straight ahead to South Chatham to Harwichport, keeping straight ahead to Hyannis.

On South highway in Hyannis is the admirable place for touring parties, the Hyannis Inn. There are rooms with or without bath and meals are served on the European plan. Mr. Cox, the manager, makes a specialty of shore dinners for the tourist.

The bathing beach furnishes the tonic of salt water bathing while the sea breeze are refreshing and invigorating. During the season a gunning camp is conducted with accommodations for 12 persons. This camp is admirably located and affords the best of sport.

In the residential section of Hyannis is the famous Eagleston Inn. Specializing in chicken and lobster dinners for which the Inn is famous, luncheon and afternoon tea served on the new veranda never fails to please. Supper dance every evening from 8 to 11 p. m. Catering to the most discriminating, Morgan S. Dada has so beautifully furnished this wonderful Inn that it favorably compares with the best New York dansant. Straight ahead at fork in road.

Straight ahead. At fork to left straight ahead through Centerville and Osterville. At end of road turn left through Cotuit. At square and four corners turn right to Waquoit Post Office on left, straight on and turn left East Falmouth at fork in road left turn up grade. Passing Teatleket P. O., on right, bear right following blue bands to Falmouth Heights.

On a high bluff at Falmouth Heights is the Terrace Gables situated at one of the most attractive points on Cape Cod, where you can view from its spacious piazzas a magnificent outlook over Vineyard Sound. Through this roadstead passes most of the coastwise commerce of the Atlantic States, always having a changing view of the ships as they pass. This marine panorama is ever tiresome.

The hotel is luxuriously furnished. Its beautiful foyer, newly added dining room, finished in black and white, make it exceedingly attractive. C. Webster Draper, the proprietor, is spending $17,000 to have this wonderful exhibit of hostelry one of the finest on the Cape.

Terrace Gables has gained much renown for the excellence of its cuisine, purchasing nothing but the best of heavy beef from Arthur E. Dorr Company of Boston, and its fresh vegetables from the native farms. Sea bathing is enjoyed to perfection.

TO WOODS HOLE.

At the foot of the bluff is a long stretch of sandy beach as clean as a freshly swept floor, with a gradual slope out to deep water. You can stay in bathing some time without being chilled, for the water is warmed to the right degree by the Gulf Stream. For the tourist Terrace Gables is a favorite tarrying place.

Leaving Falmouth keep straight ahead at square, turn left, crossing R. R. tracks down grade to Woods Hole. At fork in road keep right for Penzance garage, where ample parking space and fire-proof garage is at the convenience of the tourist while at Oak Bluffs or Nantucket. Returning to same main road just at top of up grade straight road to Falmouth bearing left on the outskirts of Falmouth with direct straight road to Catauamet three corners.

Left turn down grade to Pocasset, keeping straight ahead at four corners, cross bridge (bad curve) straight on to Monument Beach.

The beauties of Monument Beach as a Summer resort have been recognized by many prominent people. At the beach the Norcross Hotel, under the ownership of F. A. Crowley, is situated on the brink of the water's edge, the broad piazza extending right out on the water overlooking Buzzard's Bay. It is so located that the prevailing winds keep it always a cool spot.

Mr. Crowley is making a splendid improvement on the hotel, installing running water and baths in every room. There will be many water sports taking place there this year.

OVER CEMENT ROADS.

Leaving the Norcross Hotel over railroad tracks, turn left, passing Crump Garage on right, straight ahead to East Wareham and Wareham, with a sharp left turn up a slight grade to Marion, over fine cement road to the Sippican, catering to a select clientele appreciative of an atmosphere of refinement and homeness. C. W. Kokerda caters to the particular tourist, as the cuisine is of unvarying excellence.

The hotel is of the high-class modern type, accommodating from 150 to 200 guests. In connection with the hotel is a cusino situated on the water's edge. There you can enjoy dancing, bathing and billiards. There is also a fine golf course. The sailing fleet, one of the many attractions that have made "The Sippican" popular, is under the direction of Captain C. L. Davies, who will give lessons in the art of sailing a boat.

Returning to main road turning left at cross street on main road through Middeboro to Bridgewater. Here you will find construction work under way and a short piece of road in bad condition. Go straight ahead through Brockton, Randolph, Milton, Mattapan and Boston, covering approximately 550 miles.

LOOK — THERE'S MONEY AND LUCK IN YOUR NAME

NAMESTERS!

What can you do with your name?

Can you make a funny sentence out of it? Or a wise sentence? Or a snappy one? Or a slangy one? Or any kind of a sentence?

The Boston American offers a dollar to any one who sends in a bright or unusual sentence made up of the first letters of either your FIRST, middle or LAST name.

Every one printed gets a dollar. Each week a prize of $5 will be given to the best one used that week.

Everybody in Boston takes a shot at this game. It's plenty of fun trying to figure out the different sentences you can make in this way. And if you get one printed it means a dollar, or $5 if it is the best one printed during the week.

Send as many as you like. Make up sentences from your first, middle or last name. Nobody is barred.

BRINGING UP FATHER — Jiggs Brings Him Home — By George McManus

Medbury Says—

By John P. Medbury

A WOMAN in Chicago broke her husband's nose last week, blackened both his eyes and knocked three of his teeth out because he wi... $2 shy in his pay envelope.

YOU can imagine what would have happened to him if he had been ten dollars short.

HE felt his jaw, took hold of his broken nose and said to himself, "I guess my wife is sore at me."

FINALLY he had her arrested, and the judge asked her why she did it, and she said she was only playing. He told her to go home with her husband and not to play so rough next time.

A LOT of husbands have funny ideas. They imagine just because they work hard and earn the money that they have a right to some of it.

THIS dame thought her husband kept the two dollars to spend on himself. She was right, he did.

HE bought two drinks of whiskey but he shared it with her. He kissed her as soon as he got in the house.

HE didn't deny that his pay envelope was two dollars short; he didn't have time to deny it.

HE was standing up while his wife was counting it and ten seconds later he was lying down.

BUT when she hit him he didn't fall far. No, the floor stopped him.

SHE discovered the shortage so quick that he couldn't think what to tell her. Then after she hit him, he wasn't able to.

HIS heart was in his mouth, but his teeth were lying on the carpet.

HE was so scared that even the two teeth on the floor were chattering.

HE couldn't go to a dentist to have them put back, because if he did he'd be fifteen or twenty dollars short the next week and his wife would only knock them out again.

IT was hard to decide in a case like that. If he got a divorce he wouldn't have any wife, and if he stayed married he wouldn't have any teeth.

BUT the chances are if she heard he was going to sue for divorce he'd lose her and his teeth, too.

HE didn't mind her knocking out a couple of his teeth, he could spare them all right, but it made him sore to think that she broke the only nose he had.

EVERY man should take his pay envelope home to his wife, but there's only one way to do it. Call her out on the front porch, hand it to her and run.

SUCCEED IN LIKING YOUR WORK AND IT WILL NOT BE IRKSOME

All your waking hours you consider in the light of "potboilers," and you feel that you cannot get into more congenial occupation because, you would not make as much money in another line, perhaps.

Ever tried to like your work, really like it?

If you are sticking to it merely for profit, you are losing a big chance in your life for making the most of yourself.

Of course you think you know that, but do you actually appreciate the fact that it is not the kind of work you do to earn your living but the spirit you put into it which counts in making your life develop the good and great qualities inside?

You cannot do things and grumble all the time and accomplish much.

Why make hard things distasteful?

You can learn to like anything you have to do.

It is all in the mental mood you carry into your work which makes it a joy or irksome task.

When it rests with you alone, why suffer when you can control your thoughts?

CONFESSIONS OF A GROUCH

I do not believe the reformers are [illegible]

I do not think that Laddie Boy is the luckiest dog in the world. Just look at all the petting he has to stand for from Congressmen and foreign ambassadors.

I am not in favor of capital punishment because I have a shrinking suspicion I'd like to be in myself some day.

I do not believe chorus girls are as bad as they're painted. They couldn't possibly be as bad as some of the stuff they use.

I do not believe that all reformers are stupid. I do not believe it because most of them draw large salaries for advocating the reform.

I do not think the weather man is always at fault when he makes severe predictions. I believe the criminals are chiefly to blame.

I do not think that marriage is a failure. Look at all the divorce lawyers who have grown rich because of it.

No Lull Apparent in New Building, Report Shows

No lull in the amount of contracts for new building and engineering operations is as yet apparent throughout New England. The figures compiled by the F. W. Dodge Corporation show the value of the contracts awarded during the week ended May 12 to be nearly a million dollars in excess of those for the corresponding period of last year.

The total of $8,124,100 far exceeds the figures of the similar period in 1922, which were $7,255,800, as well as those of 1921, totalling $5,730,100. Except for the record total of $9,338,000 for the corresponding week in 1920, last week's valuation exceeds any of the other previous weeks during the past twenty years.

Police Quell Wild Riot At Arena Mat Bout

WRESTLERS AND FANS BATTLE

By JACK CONWAY

George Calza, Italian heavyweight wrestling champion, is still the Great Unbeaten.

Prior to that Zbyszko had scored a fall after twenty-nine minutes and two seconds of grappling. He pinned the Italian to the mat with a head scissors and wrist lock.

When the men resumed wrestling, they displayed intense bitterness toward each other. Calza, as well as Zbyszko was guilty of many infractions of the rules and on one occasion was warned by the referee.

Biting Followed When Calza Slapped Zbby.

The Italian doubled up and Referee Smith immediately disqualified Zbyszko. Hardly before the decision had been rendered John Perelli, Calza's manager, jumped into the ring and scored with a right hand smash to Zbyszko's jaw. The latter also took a left hook to the body before he started to battle back.

By this time a squad of police had jumped into the ring and they protected Zbyszko from further attacks by Perelli.

Referee Smith was the storm center of the Poles and it was necessary for a couple of policemen to withstrain him from stepping into the crowd and giving battle to a couple of his tormentors.

While the ring was filled with police, protecting the wrestlers and referee, a razor was hurled through the air. It landed near Zbyszko.

It was necessary to escort Zbyszko from the ring under a heavy police guard.

The police beat a way through the crowd by using chairs and night sticks.

Zbyszko Had Best of the Wrestling.

Up to the time of the illegal tactics Zbyszko had the better of the battling. If he had not resorted to rough methods, this writer believes he would have scored a second fall.

George Kotsonaros, Greek champion, won over Cyclone Rees in twenty-six minutes with an inside crotch and body hold.

Calza's Manager in Court for Assault

Aftermath of the wrestling riot at the Arena was the appearance of John Perelli, manager of George Calza, in Roxbury court today on a charge of slugging Wladek Zbyszko.

The complaint was made by Sergeant Patrick J. Morrissey of Back Bay station, one of the officers in charge of the police detail at the Arena.

Perelli pleaded not guilty and secured continuance to June 11 on a plea of western engagements until then. His left cheek bore a piece of gauze dressing. Sergeant Morrissey had the mysterious razor which was hurled into the ring at the time of the crowd's demonstration against Zbyszko. No claimant for the weapon has appeared, Zbyszko was in court, but Calza was not.

Holyoke, May 26—Jimmy Cooney of Holyoke was given the decision over young Manty of New Bedford in the ten-round main bout of the Valley A. C show in City Hall tonight.

SIKI NEW MAT STAR TO SHOW AT THE G. O. H.

Polish wrestlers will again predominate at the Howard Theatres weekly wrestling show at the Grand Opera House on next Thursday night.

Stanley Stasiak

Stanley Stasiak, the Lion of Poland, will meet Reginald Siki, the colored heavyweight champion, best two falls in three to a positive finish. Siki is the man who defeated Wladek Zbyszko. Hardly before the decision had been rendered John Perelli, Calza's manager, jumped into the ring and scored with a right hand smash to Zbyszko's jaw. The latter also took a left hook to the body before he started to battle back.

Harvard will attempt to even up matters with Princeton today when the two rivals clash on the Princeton diamond.

Robert Carney of Dorchester will be on the mound for the Orange and Black. Carney struck out fourteen Harvard batters a week ago, and held Harvard to three hits.

The Crimson pitcher will be Eddie Herrmann of Massilon, O., who has won three of the five games the Crimson moundsmen have played.

If Harvard wins, the playoff will take place in Boston, June 6. If the Tigers are triumphant, the series will have been won and lost, each team having taken two games.

Harvard will win either Larrabee or Keegan as catcher for Harvard. Larrabee is the regular, but is as wild as a hawk on the throw to bases. Keegan is steadier and has had more experience behind the bat.

MAY NAME PRIVATE SCHOOL CHAMPION

Two games that will probably decide the private school baseball championship will be played this afternoon at Mt. Auburn. Middlesex School nine of North Conway and the Milton Academy team will clash in their big annual diamond fray.

Burlington, Vt., May 26—Vermont will play the undefeated Boston College team here this afternoon. The Eagle clad baseballers rose out a victory by one run in their first meeting and has Coach Keeley's team, strong favorite to beat the Eagle's winning streak.

Newton will probably do the pitching for Vermont, while Boston is expected to start Captain Harry Mullowney in the box. The Vermonters hit Mullowney hard in the first game of the two teams, forcing the big Eagle southpaw to retire. Boston is strengthened by the return of Tommy Phillips to second base. This Eagle had much to do in the Vermonter's first defeat by his heavy hitting.

The WEEK'S BUSINESS in NEW ENGLAND

RATE WAR IN INTERCOASTAL TRADE ENDS

No Lull Apparent in New Building, Report Shows

No lull in the amount of contracts for new building and engineering operations is as yet apparent throughout New England. The figures compiled by the W. F. Dodge Corporation show the value of the contracts awarded during the week ended May 22 to be nearly a million dollars in excess of those for the corresponding period of last year.

The total of $8,834,400 far exceeds the figures of the similar period in 1922 which were $7,855,400, as well as those of 1921, totalling $5,570,100. Except for the record total of $9,338,000 for the corresponding week in 1920, last week's valuation exceeds any of the other previous weeks during the past twenty years.

CAR LOADINGS GAIN; NEAR RECORD

Loadings of revenue freight for the week ended May 19 totalled 924,521 cars, the greatest number since November 4, 1922 and within 4 per cent of the largest total ever compiled in a single week in the history of American railroads, according to the reports filed with the Association of Railway Executives. This compared with the corresponding week last year, the figures for the week represented an increase of 70,427 cars and an increase of 223,146 over the corresponding week in 1921. It also showed a substantial increase over the corresponding weeks in 1919, 1919 and 1918. It was 18,645 cars more than were loaded during the previous week this year.

RECORD ORE SHIPMENTS.

The increase over the preceding week of a year was principally due to heavier shipments of ore and for the week was 53,013 cars, and I was the largest total ever reported in any week before this year, an increase of 21,676 cars and an increase of 45,522 cars over the corresponding week last year. In 1921 the total for the same week was 15,291 cars.

Coal loadings also showed a heavy increase, as did the total loadings of grain. Live stock loadings, Northwestern and Southwestern districts with decreases in the Eastern, Southern and Central Western districts. Compared with the corresponding week last year, increases were reported in all districts except the Pocahontas, while all reported increases over the corresponding week in 1921 except the Southwestern district.

Loading of freight cars this year to date compared with last year follow:

The Burlington Route has taken any steps taken the most practical steps available to solve the coal question, according to General Agent Ames. Stocks of the local office of the Burlington in the Old South Building. According to Mr. Stocks the Burlington is purchasing from mines on its lines a tremendous supply—500,000 tons—which is being stored at points where it will be used next Winter.

This means that the Burlington will have its own coal when the cost of transportation is low. It will resell on the resale next Winter, for commercial purposes, of the engines and cars, which otherwise would be required to protect its own coal pile. It will also provide work for the miners during the Summer or slack season.

WRESTLERS AND FANS BATTLE

By JACK CONWAY

George Calza, Italian heavyweight wrestling champion, is still the Great Undefeated.

Prior to that Zbyszko had scored a fall after twenty-nine minutes and two seconds of grappling. He pinned the Italian to the mat with a head scissors and wrist lock.

When the men resumed wrestling, they displayed intense bitterness toward each other. Calza, as well as Zbyszko, was guilty of many infractions of the rules and on one occasion was warned by the referee

Biting Followed When Calza Slapped Zibby.

The Italian doubled up and Referee Smith immediately disqualified Zbyszko. Hardly before the decision had been rendered John Perelli, Calza's manager, jumped into the ring and scored with a right hand smash to Zbyszko's jaw. The latter also took a left hook to the body before he started to battle back.

By this time a squad of police had jumped into the ring and they protected Zbyszko from further attack by Perelli.

Referee Smith was the storm centre of the Poles and it was necessary for a couple of policemen to withstrain him from stepping into the crowd and giving battle to a couple of his tormenters.

While the ring was filled with police, protecting the wrestlers and referee, a razor was hurled through the air. It landed near Zbyszko.

It was necessary to escort Zbyszko from the ring under a heavy police guard.

The police beat a way through the crowd by using chairs and night sticks.

Zbyszko Had Best of the Wrestling.

Up to the time of the illegal tactics, Zbyszko had the better of the battling. If he had not resorted to rough methods, this writer believes he would have scored a second fall.

George Kotsonaros, Greek champion, won over Cyclone Ress in twenty-six minutes. A body lift and chin turned the trick

Stanley Stasiak, Polish sensation, disposed of Zutz Hussingan in twenty-three minutes with an inside crotch and body hold.

Calza's Manager in Court for Assault

Aftermath of the wrestling riot at the Arena was appearance of John Perelli, manager of George Calza, in Roxbury court today on a charge of slugging Windek Zbyszko.

Perelli pleaded not guilty and secured continuance to June 11 on a plea of western engagements until then. He left these here a piece of sauce dressing. Sergeant Morrissey had the incriminating razor which was hurled into the ring at the time of the crowd's demonstration against Zbyszko. No claimant for the weapon has appeared. Zbyszko was in court, but Calza was not.

SIKI NEW MAT STAR TO SHOW AT THE G. O. H.

Stanley Stasiak

Stanley Stasiak, the Lion of Poland, will meet Reginald Siki, the colored heavyweight champion, best two falls in three to a positive finish. Siki is the Harry Wills of the wrestling game. All the top notch wrestlers have been dodging him by drawing the color line.

The fact that he is a real wrestler is the main reason that all the big boys have declined to meet him. He is equally as large as Stasiak and the colored population of Boston will be out in numbers to see him in action.

The other bout on the board is between Windek Zbyszko, the Mighty son of Poland, and Andreas Costanos, the Spanish champion. This match is also best two falls in three to a positive finish

Costanos is one of the classy kind of wrestlers and Wladek will have to be at his best to gain the decision over him.

These two big finish matches will be preceded by a match between Louis Andrews, the Greek lightweight champion, and Charles Lasinger, the welterweight champion of the South. Lasinger hails from Tampa, Florida, and is at present visiting his sister in Boston.

This match will give the fans who have followed Andrews through a successful season a chance to see just how good he is against a real wrestler. This match is one fall to win and limited to 45 minutes to enable the management to start the big double star show on time.

MIDDLESEX CREWS TO OPPOSE EXETER

The annual regatta between the Middlesex School first and second fours and crews and the Exter Academy varsity and second crews will be held on Bateman's Pond, North Concord, this afternoon. Both races will be over a one half-mile course.

TWIN BILL FOR SOCCER FANS TODAY

SOCCER TODAY

BOSTON DISTRICT LEAGUE

Lynn Gas vs. Charlestown, at Cooper street, Lynn.

Roxbury vs. Clan Sutherland, at Sullivan square.

OTHER GAMES

Bunker Hill Celtics vs. Clan Robertson, at Sullivan square.

By ART CURLEY.

The State Cup competition is again up in the air because Roxbury won the appeal against the emergency committee and as a consequence the big semi-final battle, which was to have been staged today at Shawsheen Village between Fore River and Holyoke is postponed.

All the trouble started when Fore River was defeated by the young Roxbury aggregation at Marcella street, but the Quincy management protested the game and won.

On the replay, Fore River held Roxbury to a draw, and as the dates for the semi-finals had been set, the emergency committee, President Purnitt and Secretary Neilson ordered the game replayed at Quincy on the following Wednesday evening and played to a finish.

Fore River won in an extra time game which ended in the dark.

Roxbury was not satisfied and entered the appeal which was considered by the whole council. In the meantime, Fore River went ahead and played Holyoke at Beaumont Park. The game ended in a scoreless draw. It was to have been played tomorrow, but Roxbury undoubtedly will be given another chance to qualify.

Sullivan square will be the scene of a double-header. In the feature match Clan Sutherland will clash with Roxbury in an important Boston and District League match, and the Bunker Hill Celtics will stage an exhibition match with the Clan Robertson outfit of Dorchester.

Lynn fans will be treated to a red hot tussle when the Lynn Gas team meets Charlestown on the Cooper street grounds in a replayed Boston and District League fracas. Both aggregations have a chance to cop the championship of the Southern Division, and as the Gas boys are peeved because they must play the game over again after they defeated the Sullivan square favorites once, there is sure to be nearly as much excitement. It is hoped that this time a regular referee will be present to take charge of the game.

There will be a special meeting of the Boston Soccer Social Club at the Essex Hotel tonight, for the purpose of arranging for an outing or other means of increasing the membership and interest in the social end of the kicking game.

Our old friend Jack Kershaw again breaks into the limelight with a plan to form a local league to be known as the B. Division of the American League. A meeting of all people interested in the project will be held at the Franklyn Hotel, Lawrence, tomorrow evening.

HARVARD AND CORNELL REGATTA ON CHARLES

At 5 o'clock this afternoon eight sturdy wearers of the colors of Cornell will row on the Charles in a friendly battle with Harvard's varsity crew.

Half an hour later the freshmen crews of the two universities will leave the starting point at the Cottage Farm bridge in another 1½ mile race that should prove a thriller.

[illegible] will be the favorite in the [illegible] race. Although the Ithaca coached Cornelians were second in the triangular clash with Princeton and Yale, the big Ithaca crew that beat them is regarded as the greatest eight that has worn the colors of Yale in many years.

Cornell's practice rows displayed power and smoothness in their [illegible] manship.

Harvard, on the other hand, does not [illegible] quite so impressive. The [illegible] coach, Frank J. Muller, has [illegible] new stroke for this race. Stan Brown, the veteran Harvard stroke, was displaced.

Edward Spencer Matthews of Spokane, Washington, stroked the junior eight until a few days ago when [illegible] Charlie Hubbard, the football [illegible] star, and C. H. Hollister, were promoted from the junior boat to the varsity. They appear to have strengthened the varsity crew.

Harvard will have a more powerful and a smoother working eight this afternoon than three weeks ago when the Crimson was beaten by Princeton and the Navy.

Cornell, though beaten by Yale, finished ahead of Princeton. Harvard was beaten by the Naval Academy eight, was trounced by Princeton also. So this comparison points towards a Cornell victory.

Both the races will start at the Cottage Farm bridge and finish near the Union Boat Club on the Boston shore.

Both freshman crews have beaten their own varsity eights. Each [illegible] outfit is considered one of the best in the history of its alma mater.

Cornell's cub eight swept the waters of Lake Cayuga to victory over Princeton and Yale freshmen; while Harvard's first-year crew proved one of the sensations of the maritime season and defeated the Navy plebes and the Princeton freshmen in faster time than the big Navy varsity made over the Carnegie course.

Harvard will have the Boston side in the varsity race, while the Cornellians will be nearer the Boston shore in the freshman encounter. Rest [illegible] will [illegible] on high. If Harvard [illegible] and [illegible] ones if Cornell wins.

COMEDIAN BECOMES BIG LEAGUE MOGUL

By DAMON RUNYON.

Al Jolson, the comedian, buys a block of stock in the St. Louis Nationals.

This is not a comedy touch Jolson, one of the big money getters of this generation, whose income [illegible] a quarter of a million a year, perhaps more, is a shrewd investor.

He knows as everyone else knows, that St. Louis is a live town that will keep right [illegible] He knows that stock in the Cardinals will gradually increase in value as the club increases in prosperity.

He will get his original investment back with plenty of interest.

Jolson's business judgment is not [illegible]

Al Jolson.

Pioneers of Game Lost in Many Cases

Many of the pioneers of baseball [illegible] anything they had promoting the game. They lived to see others [illegible] fortunes by taking up where [illegible] were compelled to leave off.

The baseball careers of the pros [illegible] are usually all making [illegible] Some of them have made [illegible] from baseball to be [illegible]

Charles H. Ebbets, of Brooklyn; Charles Comiskey, of Chicago, and Barney Dreyfuss, of Pittsburgh, are in this class. So are the Shibes, of Philadelphia.

Those men started poor. They had their struggles. They are the few survivors of the early days of the game that cost others their financial lives.

Ebbets, starting out to build a mammoth plant before he had the money in hand, went "broke" a few years ago, was on the verge of bankruptcy. To save himself he was compelled to sell a half interest in his [illegible]

Now Ebbets lives on Easy street, the first door on the right hand side, but he divides his prosperity with his nephews, the McKeevers, former plumbers.

Charles Webb Murphy of Chicago [illegible] started as a baseball reporter, today as an investment is that it takes more money today to get into it.

[illegible] there is no franchise in the big league that will not be worth more, properly handled and expanded, in ten years than it is today. Baseball men say the best "buy" in the game is the Philadelphia National League Club, but the buyer must be some one who will do exactly the things that the present owners will not do.

George Meyer Failed to Wager on Own Horse

George Meyer, composer of popular melodies of the kind Al Jolson sings, took some of the royalties from "Back Me to Sleep In My Old Tucky Home," and bought Sea Cove, a race horse.

Meyer selected colors for his [illegible] of horse," engaged a trainer, and told his friends to watch for Sea Cove's name in the next list of entries, especially if it happened to be rainy weather. Sea Cove is good in the mud.

Tuesday at Jamaica, Sea Cove was in the second race. Tasker Ogle, the best handicapper in America, said Sea Cove would win. It did. The track muddy, Sea Cove, in the new Meyer colors, galloped in an easy first.

The opening price offered shoppers by the bookmakers at the race track on Sea Cove was three to one.

Many of George Meyer's friends, remembering what George told them, wagered on Sea Cove. Up to this time it is a pleasant story.

Sadness enters here. George Meyer did not wager on his horse. He did not think it exactly the "right spot." Picking the "right spot" is one of the chanciest plays in this strange gamble called life.

Kentucky Oaks Valued at $10,000 Will Be Run at Churchill Downs Today

By GUS DALY

Belmont Park had a tremendous crowd at its opening [illegible] Thursday [illegible] the mountain handicap, saw Grey Lag the winner [illegible] mile. Trevator's performance was disappointing while Dima Care, the runner-up, played [illegible] a creditable effort.

The Kentucky Derby has been run, but it will take a lot more to convince many thoroughbred experts that the winner of that classic, Zev, is a better horse than Vigil, which was running fourteenth [illegible] horse at the half-mile pole. After moving them down one by one, he finished a bang-up third and ran fastest of all. They will meet soon in the Belmont Stakes at a longer distance and with a smaller field. Then the superiority question will be settled for fair.

The Kentucky Oaks of $10,000 to be decided at Churchill Downs today dates back [illegible] to 1875. It is for three-year-old fillies, the best bunch of that age and sex that the American turf can boast will take the mile.

The East is apparently as strong as it was in the Kentucky Derby. Sally's Alley, Gadfly, Miss Corina, Contira and Dot all have shown splendid form this season, and the experts from the East feel sure that one of the above will surely grab the bacon. The South and West will put their hopes principally on Anna M. Humphrey, Bettie Beal, Alice Bird Gown and Sweetheart.

The opening at Woodbine Park, Toronto [illegible] greatest ever known. Four [illegible] were in attendance. It was graced by the presence of His Excellency, the Governor-General Lord Byng of Vimy, and many other [illegible]

The favorites are winning their share of the purses at Woodbine Park and at the recent meeting at Jamaica, but at Louisville long shots win frequently. PANHANDLERS REAP RICH HARVEST AT TWILIGHT GAMES

FANS INSULTED FOR FAILURE TO DIG DOWN

HORNSBY BROKE UP HIS HOME, SAYS SALESMAN

[illegible] Rogers Hornsby, star second baseman of the St Louis Nationals declines to discuss the case of John A. Hine, automobile salesman, who filed a petition in the Court of Domestic Relations here in which Hornsby is named as having broken up Hine's home.

A hearing on the petition was asked that a divorce granted Mrs Jeanette Pennington Hine [illegible] and several months ago, be set aside on the grounds that it was obtained by fraud, was continued until next Friday.

A love letter signed "Rogie," and purported to have been written by Hornsby, was introduced by counsel for Hine.

Hine testified his former wife admitted to him Hornsby was the author of the missive and that his attorneys had "all the proof in the world," that the ball player wrote the letter.

"My attorneys have telegrams which were sent to me by Hornsby's attorney offering terms to hush up the matter," Hine said in a statement.

"If necessary I can bring Hornsby's teammates into court to prove that he wrote the letter. It is not money that I want; it is revenge. Hornsby has broken up my home."

Mrs. Hine, testifying in her behalf, said they were married in 1919 and that Hine had failed to support her.

Hornsby wrenched his knee in Philadelphia May 9 and will be out of the line-up indefinitely. Dr. Robert Hyland physician for the club, pinched the knee in a cast and put on Pocatello [illegible] to-day by Tilden, the writer [illegible] his experience much better than the average junior player.

There is no question about this tour being a success. It should stimulate interest in the game throughout the middle and far west as well as being of great help to the various Western associations.

THIS THE LAST DAY TO ENTER CAMPAIGN

The Boston American "Learn to swim" campaign comes to a close today, and it will go down as the most successful ever held in this city. Hundreds of boys took the advantage to receive these free instructions and all today are in a position to help themselves and others in the water.

The boys who started late this week will be given the opportunity to continue the instructions and win their certificates.

The Boys' Club of Boston left nothing undone to give the boys the best possible and this organization deserves the praise of all for the work accomplished.

Instructor O. B. Hanson and his assistants, backed by M. G. LeRoy, director of the club, gave the campaign boys personal attention and many new friends and boosters of the club were made.

The last chance to get [illegible] pass comes today. The membership coupon is published for the last time, and only those who enroll to-day can join the classes.

TECH ACCEPTS THE KANALY RESIGNATION

The resignation of Frank Kanaly as coach of the track teams at Technology was accepted by the president of the school and the athletic council. The action will permit Kanaly to take up work next Fall at the University of Maine, which has made a bid for his services, and was taken at a special meeting of the athletic board.

The Tech authorities were sorry to lose Kanaly, for in his decade of service he has filled a big place. Dr Rowe stated that while the coach's departure was regrettable, the opportunity for him was one which Tech could not duplicate.

Both Dr. Rowe and Dr. Rockwell have received applications from coaches who would like to take the vacant berth, but no action was taken as to the choice of a successor to Kanaly.

The committee telegraphed Coach Kanaly at Philadelphia, where he is with the Tech team at the I. C. A. A. A. meet, that his resignation had been accepted.

TENNIS STARS IN LONG TOUR

By VINCENT RICHARDS

New York, May 26—William T. Tilden, Manuel Alonso and little "Sandy" Weiner, fourteen-year-old prodigy of the world's champion will leave shortly for an extended tour of the Pacific coast.

According to the plans that the tall Quaker has mapped out, this noted trio will play in practically every city on the way out to the coast. They will open their tour with the National Claycourt singles and doubles championship that is held in Indianapolis the latter part of June.

Alonso Should Prove Sensation

Manuel Alonso should prove a real sensation on this coming western tour. Possessed of a fiery temperament, a charming personality and a marvellous tennis game, the famous Spanish champion should be a revelation to the western tennis fans.

It is the writer's belief that one could comb the entire tennis world and not find three greater showmen than Tilden, Winer and Alonso. Everything that a tennis gallery craves is represented in these three players.

In Tilden the fan can always look for the unexpected. In fact, one never knows just what the tall Quaker will do next when he is on the court. Alonso is the dashing type of player, the man who makes the sensational recoveries and at all times keeps the gallery on its toes.

Young Weiner plays the usual type of junior game, but due to his [illegible] by Tilden, the writer believes that his experience is much better than the average junior player.

There is no question about this tour being a success. It should stimulate interest in the game throughout the middle and far west as well as being of great help to the various Western associations.

Boxing and Wrestling

Luis Firpo listens to reason; Kilbans will carry the banner of Age—Dope running true again—Calza is still king.

By JACK CONWAY.

Luis Firpo, who has made $100,000 fighting and in the movies in less than a year, proved himself much like other boxers when he demanded half of New York City for a bout with Jess Willard.

Jack Conway

A year ago Firpo was virtually an unknown. Today his name is on the lips of sporting men throughout the world. Unfortunately, a boxer's intellect does not as a rule grow as rapidly as his popularity does in the event he is a kayo artist.

Firpo, therefore, greatly overestimated his worth as a box office attraction. When Tex Rickard intimated to the young Argentine wonder that he had a slight attack of inflated ego, Luis quickly came to terms.

Willard and Firpo will play to half a million dollars. Jess will be paid about $150,000, Firpo $100,000.

A rather huge sum for less than an hour's work in the open air.

Uncle Sam only paid real fighters $30 a month when Death waited across the trench with a kayo wallop.

Johnny Kilbane Will Carry the Banner of Age

Johnny Kilbane, thirty-three, will risk his featherweight championship against Eugene Criqui in a fifteen-round bout at New York on next Saturday.

Don't take too seriously all this talk about Kilbane being an old man. One should be in their prime at thirty-three. Most of our star boxers maintain their ability until at least thirty-five if they live proper lives and train in a scientific manner.

Criqui is not what might be termed a spring chicken. He is as old as Kilbane. He also went through the rigors of warfare. He had the left side of his jaw shot away. A metal plate was later inserted in the jaw and now aids greatly in [illegible].

Criqui's friends say his metal jaw makes him knockout proof. This would be very good reasoning if it were not true that Memphis Pal Moore and Tommy Noble, light punchers, both knocked out Criqui SINCE HE GOT HIS METAL JAW.

The Old Dope Is Working Like a Charm

Now and then the dope goes wrong. An example [illegible] Maxie Rosenbloom, Jimmy Slattery, Mickey Walker, Tommy Ryan, Jack Johnson, twenty-five [illegible] nineteen cases out of 100 the [illegible] youngster would win.

We figure such things when we name winners. The dope has been working perfectly for the past week.

Perhaps these few facts will show you how foolish one is to bet. The city percentage is against you. Those gentlemen who avoid work by gambling on sporting events are able to get much better information than the average person. This writer is able to do better than over the bettors when it comes to gain information. And by giving the correct dope to the fans we have ruined the income of some of our best little parasites.

No flowers, please.

George Calza Is Still the Wrestling King

George Calza is still wrestling king.

Possibly George Kotsenaros, Greek champion, will be the one to defeat him. These men will battle at the Boston Arena next month.

Renato Gardini also figures he would be able to upset the Italian champion

KILBANE IS FIT FOR BATTLE FOR TITLE

New York, May 26.—"I [illegible] knock out Eugene Criqui in the [illegible] rounds."

That was the confident statement made today by Johnny Kilbane, world's featherweight champion, who defends his title against the Frenchman in a fifteen-round decision battle at the Polo Grounds next Saturday afternoon.

Kilbane has commenced his heavy training. From now on we'll take things easy so that he will be on edge when he goes South to defend his championship.

The champion trained for 17 months out at his country home in Ohio before coming East.

THE WAYS OF A HUSBAND—By ANN LISLE

Continuing the Interesting and Intensely Human Adventures of Anne and Jim

HOW THE STORY STARTS

Jim and Anne find happiness again on a honeymoon spent in the apartment of Betty Winston, loaned for the occasion. They go to Dreamwold for a Sunday dinner with Jeanie and are met in the grounds by Rosa, who ignores Anne. Rosa advises the discharge of Mabel Storrs to save the big salary. This Anne resents. Evvy helps Anne arrange her apartments and a dinner is given as a housewarming.

By Ann Lisle

I STARTED at him in astonishment. Perhaps I had a moment of foreboding, as I remembered how mockingly Rosa had denied that any man could be any woman's friend and nothing more. Perhaps my mind dashed back to Max Bradley and to Carl Booth, and the way they had interpreted friendship.

Before the fright in my eyes Ralph Lacy's eyes became very gentle. The glow of his smile was so like Neal's that I had suddenly a complete sense of warmth and assurance.

"Shall I go?" asked Ralph quietly.

"Oughtn't you to eat, and take Betty home?" I suggested.

"Don't make light of my feeling," Ralph said wit' sudden grimness. "I don't make light of your standards, or I might claim that my feeling has some rights. Now I only want you to know. That seems your right."

"Nothing has happened to change our friendship," I answered gently. "Nothing has happened to change my regard and respect for you."

"Thank you, Anne, for saying the one fine thing there is to be said," Ralph replied. "My reverence for you is greater than anything else I'll ever know. And if ever I can serve you, you'll let me, won't you?"

"Your friendship has been served from the beginning," I said, slowly and painfully. "I've taken so much"—

"And given an ideal," he cut in abruptly. "That's a wonderful thing to give a man who spent his youth grubbing in gutters. A boy like that may easily enough turn out to be a good business man. He has to—or go on making his home in packing boxes. But where's he going to get an ideal? How's he going to learn to—look at the stars instead of into the mud from which he's trying to climb? You've given me—enough."

"I'm glad I've meant something to you," I said, fumbling for words.

A Real Tribute

"You've meant everything," Ralph Lacy answered, simply. "Now, let me play to you until Jim and Betty come back. You're tired and it isn't fair to worry you as I'm doing. Only I want to say one more thing. I'm asking nothing. I'd never ask anything—except the privilege of being your friend. I know Jim's your man. I just want to go on looking at the stars."

"You're a wonderful man!" I cried, "Some day you'll find a splendid woman who'll love you as you deserve, and you'll both be very happy. I—I didn't know"—

"You didn't know I played the piano," he interrupted with a smile that is so like Neal's. "I do—a bit, and it's soothing for—tired nerves. Lean back and relax and forget your cold and me and everything but the music."

I did as I was told—or as nearly as I could manage. Ralph Lacy's music had a warm, colorful quality with force back of the old ballads he played so tenderly. On and on he played, from Rachmaninoff to Debussey and from old English airs to the tenderness of Cyril Scott. Nothing has ever done more to rest and reassure me.

So silent was I on the music that I did not hear Jim's key in the lock and had no idea that he and Betty were back again until her voice sounded out, with a strange tenseness.

"I thought that I came back to say good-night to Anne. I believe I was led to hear you play, Ralph, mooning! Anne hands me enough of that," laughed Jim. "Let's have a waltz, Ralph. I feel like making love to my wife."

"Time to take Betty home," said Ralph suddenly closing the piano. "No more music—in my—fingers —tonight."

For a week or two Jim and I seemed to be passing through a period of equinoctial storms. The misunderstandings, which began with his refusal to dine with the Headleys and which flashed out into such fireworks over Howard Rockhill, went on and on in stupid series.

Our cook left and the maid served soggy toast and lukewarm coffee one morning. At once Jim complained of my housekeeping. In spite of the fact that I was miserable on account of the cold which had kept me from going along with Jim and Betty to inspect Rosa's apartment, I hurried home early from the office that evening to prepare the dinner. While I was in the midst of it Jim telephoned in great irritation because he hadn't been able to reach me at the office.

"However, I've got you at last. Meet me at seven sharp, as We'll have dinner downtown and take in a show," he said, clicking up the receiver without waiting for my acceptance of the invitation which was more like an order.

Feeling like a martyr I went to meet Jim at the appointed time. And when I was frankly bored at the musical comedy he had selected I showed it. He turned on me agrily during the intermission.

"Can't you have the decency to pretend a little gratitude?" he asked.

"For this attention," he answered, "Tickets at this show aren't so darn easy to get. Some chap could pay have to inherit them. I paid enough of a premium, so I'd like to register pleasure."

Another View

I did not answer. I couldn't How was I to explain what, after all the time we've been man and wife, Jim still refuses to see—that I'd rather have a dandelion I want than an American Beauty he insists I must like because he wants me to?

When the curtain went up again I found myself more than ever bored by the under-pops of stale jokes, crushing tunes and wild dancing which delights Jim so. And I found my mind wandering on the one path from which I'd been resolutely keeping it since the evening when Ralph Lacey told me how much he cherishes our friendship. I wanted to cry out

"Oh, Jim, Jim! You have all of my heart. Why don't you cherish it? No one but you can make me happy. There's no one but you I'd give myself utterly to make happy. Why don't you see that?"

But suddenly I saw something which astounded me. What's the matter with my cherishing our love a little—even if I have to do it in an environment I haven't selected? I dragged myself out of my mood and turned to the stage, determined to see through Jim's eyes. When he applauded, I applauded. At the end of the play I exclaimed:

"I guess you're beginning to cultivate my taste for musical shows. This has a lot of—go to it, hasn't it?"

"I should say so," replied Jim curtly. "Cut out the pose if you want folks to like you, Anne. That highbrow stuff Ralph plays is all right in its place. But I'll bet he'd a darn sight rather have been playing a good snappy foxtrot than playing up to your ideas of entertainment. Ralph's a regular. We can't see too much of him. S'pose we have him over Sunday?"

Hard to Explain

"I don't think we ought to"—I began, letting my thoughts formulate themselves before I reflected how hard they'd be to explain without betraying Ralph's secret. "We ought to keep most of our time open for Phoebe now," I added desperately, though truthfully.

"Yes, I guess the kiddie has first claim," replied Jim tolerantly, and an uncomfortable moment was mercifully over.

But the very next morning Phoebe's claim was pressed when I had least desire to pay it. Just as I got in for dinner—which I was hoping a cook who'd been acquired in the morning would flavor to suit Jim—Neal telephoned. He begged me to come at once, as Phoebe was in a state of hysteria and they couldn't find her doctor. He hoped I could do something.

Leaving a message of explanation for Jim with the second maid, I rushed out on the instant, and hailing a taxi ordered it full speed ahead for Neal's. My young brother's voice had lost all its brave buoyance and was as frightened as when a three-year-old he used to run to his Babbsie from all the terrors of big babyhood. And I was surprised when any one as brave as Neale loses courage.

A Splendid Sequel to the Famous Story of Wedded Life, "When a Girl Marries"

HEROINES OF HISTORY

Poppaea, Mistress of Rome

By Mark Stuyvesant

It seems incredible, but it is an actual fact, that in the very beginning of the very first century of the Christian era a woman lived in Rome who knew the power of publicity. She knew every trick of creating popular interest and bringing herself before the public eye.

Of course there were no newspapers then. There was not even a printing press. But this siren accomplished popularity without such aids. She knew that "It pays to advertise."

Poppaea—that is her name—was rich, well-born and very beautiful. Her eyes were the green of jade. Her hair was burnished gold. Her figure was superb.

She knew all this and made the most of her charms. Poppaea saw to it that all Rome knew she took a bath every day in a beautiful marble tub and that 250 gallons of milk were brought in huge urns and poured into this bath in the beautiful marble courtyard.

Poppaea employed mystery as an aid also. She never appeared in public unless she was heavily swathed in many bright-colored veils.

This gorgeous creature was the talk of Rome. All men fell under her spell.

With cold-blooded judgment, discarding love as a factor, Poppaea married Rufus Crispinius, a man of high rank, wealth and importance. He worshipped his beautiful wife, who had only married him in order to meet these of power in Rome.

Very soon Poppaea fell really in love—but not with Crispinius. She fell in love with Otho, the handsome and influential friend of Nero.

The fact that Poppaea divorced Crispinius and the great splendor married Otho, only added to her fascination to the Roman public.

The marriage of Otho and Poppaea was one for real love, or what seemed real love. Otho could talk of nothing but his lovely wife to his friend, Nero.

So constantly did he rave of Poppaea's beauty and charm that Nero went to see his friend's bride.

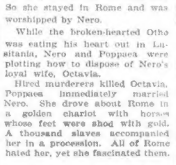
The all-powerful Nero no sooner saw Poppaea's beauty that he too fell in love with her.

Poppaea saw her ambition realized. She would sit on the throne beside Nero! She would be Empress of Rome!

Immediately Otho was cast away to be Governor of Lusitania—or what is today Portugal. That was too long a journey for Poppaea. So she stayed in Rome and was worshipped by Nero.

While the broken-hearted Otho was eating his heart out in Lusitania, Nero and Poppaea were plotting how to dispose of Nero's loyal wife, Octavia.

Hired murderers killed Octavia. Poppaea immediately married Nero. She drove about Rome in a golden chariot with horses shod with gold. A thousand slaves accompanied her in a procession. All of Rome hated her, yet she fascinated them.



SHE PREFERRED POWER.

This woman influenced Nero to such a degree that he murdered his mother.

Nero was going mad by this time. Poppaea hated him to new horrors to keep his mind diverted.

Finally, Poppaea was at the end of her inventions to keep the mad man quiet. She was in hopes that the child which was to be born to her would be a son. That might appease him.

But, one night, returning late and having drunken too freely, Nero kicked Poppaea brutally. She died.

Otho heard of the tragedy. He saw a chance to avenge the woman he still loved. With an army he started to march to Rome.

At the same time another conspiracy was started against Nero by Prince General Galba.

Otho turned aside to weep over the grave of the woman he loved. The historian Tacitus writes:

"Not even then forgetful of his olden love."

But this cost him Rome. Galba reached Rome first and seized the throne.

ROMANCE OF JEWELS

—By Barbara Bayne—

BLACK PRINCE'S RUBY

THOUGH according to Hindu reckoning it is only a red spinel—a ruby of the lowest "caste"—it is the most famous historical ruby in the world and occupies a foremost place in Britain's Imperial Regalia.

In the fourteen century Pedro the Cruel reigned in Castile, and Abu Said, chief in the neighboring Kingdom of Granada, with his magnificent retinue, came to visit his court. They were all foully murdered by Don Pedro to gain possession of this gleaming red jewel.

The English "Black Prince" and his wife, the "Fair Maid of Kent," were at Bordeaux. For coming to his aid in battle, April 30, 1367, Don Pedro presented him with the ruby, which he wore in his bonnet. But it was a costly gift, for the Black Prince, while in Spain, contracted the disease which caused his death.

The next appearance of the ruby was also on a battlefield—at Agincourt, October 25, 1415. This time it adorned the iron casque of King Henry V., as arrayed in gorgeous gilt-embossed armor, he went proudly to battle.

The French knights had sworn to strike the crown from his head, and the Duc d'Alencon finally struck it a terrific blow with his battleaxe. The King, nearly done to the ground, but he was rescued, and a small portion of the crown containing the ruby was saved.

At the coronation of every king and queen of England since then this ruby had shone resplendent in the front of the Imperial crown.

Tapioca Cream

For the cream I put 3 cups of milk and 4 rounding teaspoons of tapioca into double boiler and let it soak 10 minutes. Then put it on the stove. Beat the yolks of 2 eggs very light with egg beater in quite a large bowl, and gradually beat in 2-3 cup granulated sugar. Beat until light yellow and creamy, then add 2 well-rounded teaspoons of cornstarch dissolved in a little cold water. Beat again, and when the milk is good and hot pour in and stir well. Cook 5 minutes longer, then remove from fire and beat the two whites of the eggs stiff. Add to the hot custard. Beat them in well and flavor with vanilla and a speck of salt. Serve cold with sponge cake.

GYPSIES are usually supposed to be of Egyptian origin, but they probably came from India, and reached Europe about the beginning of the fifteenth century. They were feared and persecuted.

THE HE MAN By GEORGE AGNEW CHAMBERLAIN

Thrilling Story of Man and Girl Who Are Utter Strangers Living Together in African Jungle

"Tell your master that I will dine with him with pleasure"

HOW THE STORY STARTS:

ANDREA PELLOR, the daughter of an impoverished British baron, is engaged to a millionaire diamond merchant whom she does not love. Stealing away from the Indian Ocean Hotel she sees a flying machine on the beach, being gotten ready to ascend by two men, a white and a giant black. Upon the spur of the moment she cries: "Take me with you!" He straps her in and they are away. She becomes frightened and asks to be taken back. He says he is not going back. The engine goes wrong and they land in the midst of a village in the African jungle. The natives hail him as a friend.

CHAPTER VIII.

It was two hours later when the incident was repeated in every detail save that the shots came from still farther away; and about three hours after, once more the thing happened, only this time Bathtub rolled his eyes and hugged himself in gormandizing anticipation as he breathed for the third time the word, "Master!"

Andrea was vaguely interested until the sequel to those eighteen shots began to arrive and then she was stunned with horror. Amid the shouts of men and the shrill ululooing of the women they began to come in, beast after beast, each trussed to a pole and borne by six, sometimes eight, naked and straining blacks.

First to arrive were five sable antelope, beautiful even in death, the proud sweep of their glorious horns inverted, chick tongues dangling in the dust. The bearers did not stop within the crawl but passed through the chanting throng as though they were engaged in a perverted Bacchanalian pageant of blood. Women and children streamed after them and even Bathtub looked longingly in the direction they had gone.

Scarcely had the hullabaloo of their passing died into the distance when a new contingent arrived. These were not chanting, they were talking garrulously, repeating, if she could have understood them, every detail of a tour de fusil: six head for six shots, the last five at running game! "M'ungo, M'ungo," the one word she knew, cropped out from their jabber with the steady recurrence of a haunting fugue. What they bore were six wild-beests, male and female, buffoons of the plains, still pitifully grotesque, their horse-like tails trailing like discouraged funeral plumes.

And then it came again, four bonds this time, but every one as big as a horse. Eight men strained under each carcass of eland, largest and goodliest of all the hundred varieties of antelope that swarm over the length and breadth of Africa.

Andrea arose but her knees trembled so that she quickly sat down in one of the wicker chairs, clutching its arms with hands gone white as though all the blood in her body had hidden in shame. Then came the white man, followed by gunbearers, water-boys and trackers. His khaki helmet was pulled low on his forehead but not low enough to hide his eyes, sunken and rimmed with shadows of fatigue. His face and his bare arms were streaked with sweat and dust. His shirt and trousers clung to him in great dark blots of moisture. He nodded to Andrea as he made straight for his hut.

Suddenly her strength came back to her. She sprang up and rushed to cut him off. "You are a murderer," she gasped as she faced him. Her eyes blazed but her lower lip was trembling piteously.

The man stopped in his tracks and started at her. Gradually he took in her meaning. "You think I do it for—for fun?" he exclaimed.

Already Bathtub was pushing a cup of hot tea into his hands. He took it, stirred and drank it without ever taking his eyes from Andrea's face.

"Murderer," she repeated tensely.

The man handed back the empty cup, glanced at his hut and turned his body on it with a sigh. "Come with me," he said.

"I shall never go anywhere with you," replied Andrea.

The man faced her quickly. "You will come with me or be carried. Take your choice."

Their eyes met and held in one of those struggles that measure not so much the contending characters as the strength of the opposing purposes. The man's purpose won out. Andrea dropped her eyes and followed him. He passed swiftly through the crawl and along a well-worn path that led to the fringe of the forest. All along that fringe could be seen the rising blue spirals of smoke from small campfires. Under an enormous mafuta tree the butchers were at work, four to each carcass, skinning, cutting, hacking with practised hands. The meat was being piled in heaps and at each heap was stationed a black captain. Under his direction a host of helpers were cutting the flesh into minute portions.

Beyond the limits of the tree's far-flung branches smatted a black army—men with assagais in their hands, women and children with queer conical baskets in their laps. Their tongues chatted incessantly but their eyes never wavered in their lustful gaze on the meat. Physically these people were, with out exception, a joy to the eye, but beyond them, grouped together, under another tree and hopelessly staring, was a small band that brought sudden tears to Andrea's eyes. Never before had she seen human bones and skin without flesh, live eyes staring from the skeleton emblem of death.

At last the division of the sanguinary spoil was completed. The well-fed army lined up, each and every man accompanied by woman or child at each call for the small burden. These men were also provided with individual brass checks which they cast into the baskets at the feet of the captain upon receipt of their portion of meat. At the end, to Andrea's amazement, the last was exact except that it left the starving group out of the count.

Stood Grimly By

Through it all the white man had stood grimly by, uttering not a word and leaving her to the assistance of her own intelligence. She began to understand; the possessors of the brass checks had been sold to them, but her eyes lingered pitifully on the starving.

She turned to the man with a gesture of pleading—pleading for pardon for herself, mercy for the silent suffering. "What about these?" she asked.

"They will receive a ration of millet," he answered. "Tomorrow the men will crawl on the forests; twice a week they will get meat checks. In a month they and their families will be fat and sleek. We refuse no one who wishes to work."

Like all he said, it was an unanswerable argument. It stood alone, scorning further justification, omitting even the suggestion of apology. He turned to lead the way back to the crawl and, once there, promptly disappeared into his hut. Half an hour later Andrea was nervously moving about her room wondering whether to put on her frock or not when Bathtub arrived with a message. Did she wish to dine alone or with M'ungo?

"Tell your master," she answered, "that I will dine with him with pleasure."

During the meal, the white man talked, giving her listlessly certain explanatory information. "Eight months ago," he said, "I struck this country. It was desolation. In spite of the big river which is quite near by the whole district was in famine. I passed through ruined crash after ruined crash and in some of them dead bodies lay about, too dried out in life even to rot. The game swarmed as it does only in dry seasons and thrived."

Andrea held both hands out toward him as though to stop him. "Don't——," she cried, "don't think I haven't understood!"

"Upon my word," remarked the man dryly, "you're getting sincere!"

She sank back in her chair with a look of reproach but he did not notice it. "I'm telling you," he continued, "I came to hunt and recover——" He paused.

Andrea could not keep her eyes from glancing toward the aeroplane. It was as though she had followed his hidden thought. He flushed slightly, changed his sentence and finished, "and for another purpose. But almost on the day of arrival, I made a discovery in the forest. Out of it has grown an industry that employs hundreds of natives and never refuses a new recruit. I am working absolutely without title and should you return to civilization my ruin would be quite within your grasp."

"And that is why I must stay," said Andrea.

"No," said the man reading her face, "if I could drop you back tomorrow there on the beach where I found you, I would do it."

Andrea felt a sudden surge of pleasure, out of all proportion to the occasion. "Thank you," she whispered, and then flushed at a sudden wonder as to the exact nature of a feeling of gladness over the fact that she was not called upon then and there to decide whether in her heart she wished to go or stay.

"But I can't," continued the man. "I can't leave my people or my work for two weeks; I dare not trust you to a native escort." He drew away from the table that he might cross his knees, took a cigar and lit it.

"You've eaten nothing," said Andrea.

"I'm too tired to eat just now," he answered.

Presently she arose. "I'm tired too, White Man," she lied. "May I leave you?"

He gave her an almost grateful glance, arose and lifted one side of the net for her to pass. She went to her room to read but an hour later when she chanced out, surprised to see the lights burning under the tree, the white man was still there, hands dropped upon his knees, head fallen forward, sound asleep in his chair.

Andrea clasped and unclasped her hands nervously. "Oh, why doesn't he go to bed?" she said to herself. "He can't get any comfort out of that sort of thing." Finally she stole out and found Bathtub. "Wake your master," she commanded. "Tell him to go to bed."

Darky Grinned

The darky grinned up at her sleepily until he grasped her request, then his face took on a look of mixed fear and mischief. "Bath tub wake M'ungo one time plenty long ago and never forget. Missis try it."

She looked at the lax figure, bone-tired, plunged miles deep in slumber, but even from those depths exuding a sense of compelling latent power, and hesitated. Getting up her courage she coughed twice quite loudly but ineffectually and then, feeling almost relieved that nothing happened, stole away on tiptoe.

The seven days that followed were much as the first; when the white man was not shooting for the pot he was away overseeing his army of laborers. He ate but twice a day, at half past five in the morning and twelve hours thereafter. To the latter meal Andrea was invariably and formally invited.

Lovely Daughter of English Baron Escapes in Aeroplane From Distasteful Marriage

MICROSCOPIC FORCES

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

"What causes capillary action in small tubes? Is there any limit to the height that it will lift a liquid?—C. J. S., New York."

CAPILLARY action, which gets its name from the Latin word capillus, "hair," (referring to the smallness of the tubes used), is the drawing up of a liquid along the line of contact between it and a solid, such as glass. When a narrow tube is used the liquid rises relatively high in the interior, and higher in proportion as the diameter of the tube is smaller.

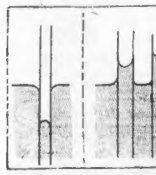
Water, for instance, rises in a glass tube one millimeter (about one 25th of an inch) in diameter, to a height of 3 1-3 centimeters.

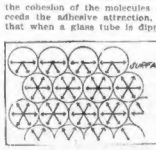
Mercury is depressed by capillary action, as at the left, where water is raised, and twice as high in tube of half diameter, as at left.

In a similar tube only one-hundredth of a millimeter in diameter it would rise 232 centimeters, or eleven feet.

The force that holds the water up in the tube is equivalent to the weight of the suspended liquid. This force arises from what is known as "surface tension." Surface tension is due to the fact that the molecules of a liquid forming its upper surface are drawn downward and pressed against one another by the cohesive attraction of the molecules in contact with them below, but are not drawn upward because there are no molecules above to attract them. The result is a force acting across the surface which causes a layer of the topmost molecules to act like an elastic skin drawn over the liquid.

When a liquid is in contact with a solid another attractive force called adhesion comes into play, the tendency of which is to draw the liquid molecules over the surface of the solid. If the attraction of the solid exceeds the cohesion of the liquid the latter spreads over the solid, "wetting" it. If the solid surface is horizontal, and rising, if the surface is vertical, to a height depending upon the tension. It happens that in the case of the liquid mercury the cohesion of the molecules exceeds the adhesive attraction, so that when a glass tube is dipped into mercury the mercury is depressed instead of being lifted along the line of contact, and inside the tube.





Surface tension caused by Unbalanced molecular attraction on upper particles. Little circles show radius of cohesive attraction, enormously magnified.

BAD DAY FOR THE GOSSIP

CONTRARY planets dominate this day, according to astrology. It is a way under which to avoid any departure from well-tried business methods. Warning is given against gossip and misrepresentation, intrigues and conspiracies which are encouraged by the position of the stars.

ATTAINING A LONG LIFE

—By Brice Belden, M. D.—

WHAT, specifically, can we do to lengthen the span of life?

Answer—Get more outdoor exercise, get more moisture into the heated air of our dwellings and offices, improve the cleansing and general care of the teeth, eat more fresh foods like the green leaves of plants, tomatoes, fruits and, of course, roots and vegetables; drink a quart of clean milk daily (preferably raw), eat a reasonable amount of meats and fats, drink a good deal of water between meals; eat whole wheat bread and get sufficient sleep.

These are things that we have to do—positive things. What we may not do is another story.

Many medical scientists believe that we are losing in robustness and vigor, due very largely to poor dental development and early deterioration of the teeth.

We are saving the lives of more children, but not making much progress after the age of sixteen, according to the latest figures of one of our biggest life insurance companies.

Our wonderful progress in medicine and surgery is made possible in part through our relative failure in preventing disease; that is to say, we combat successfully, many times, what should never have developed.

Thus food is a big factor in relation to longevity. Even if we cannot always have fresh food we can appreciate the importance of getting more fresh food than we do, and of not overcooking our foods, which destroys the vitamines and alters injuriously the chemistry of the food. It is the freshness of the foods of uncivilized or semi-civilized people that accounts for their good teeth.

FOXY GRANDPA STORY

HOW HE SAW A WONDERFUL BRIDGE

YES, children, I agree with you, a great bridge spanning from one side of a great chasm to another is a wonderful thing. What a splendid feeling of helpful work well done the engineers who planned it and the men who built it must have as they see it spanning the tide and saving time and energy for men.

What are some of the great bridges in the world? There's a wonderful bridge across the Firth of Tay, near Dundee, Scotland, and there's another great bridge in Canada, near Quebec, and then, right here in the United States there are four great bridges across the East River joining New York with Long Island, and others in many other States.

There are several kinds of great bridges, among them cantilever bridges.

A cantilever bridge is different from a suspension bridge. The cantilever bridge is simply built from two great foundations on each side and hasn't any brace even in the middle. That's the kind of a bridge I saw in the Alps and—it was alive!

Yes, it was really and truly alive, and I'll tell you about it.

Bobby, Bunny and I were high up in the Alps in Switzerland. Oh, how beautiful it was! We were on the lookout for a chamois.

You know, a chamois is an animal very much like an antelope and it's like a goat, too. Every chamois is a wonderful jumper and climber. Sometimes a chamois will jump from a great height right down on a precipice, and land on his four feet as easily and lightly as a pussy cat jumps from a back fence and lands on the ground.

This day we were in luck. I had my camera all ready hoping that we would see one of these rare animals, because I would rather take a picture of an animal than shoot one, wouldn't you?

As we were walking along, Bunny pulled my coat and said:

"Look!"

There, standing on a big rock was a beautiful chamois, and guess what was by her side? Two of the cutest little baby chamois you ever saw in your life!

I whispered to Bobby:

"Now, be very quiet and I'll sneak up and try to get their picture."

I dropped my Alpine stick which I had used for climbing, and crept up as quietly as I could, but the mother chamois pricked up her ears and her two babies cuddled up close to her side.

There was no place for her to go, because she and her family were standing on the edge of a rock overhanging a narrow, deep crevasse. I knew that she could jump across to the other side, but I didn't think she would leave her babies and I knew they couldn't jump.

What do you think she did? She got a firm foothold with her hind legs on the rock and then threw her body across this chasm and caught hold of the other side with her front feet, making a perfect bridge. Then she looked over her shoulder at her babies. I was so surprised that I dropped my camera and just stood there with my mouth open.

The two babies never hesitated, but walked straight across their mother's back to the other side of the chasm.

Then, with a great effort, she gave a tremendous wriggle and a jerk and dragged herself up on the other side.

Then they all kicked up their hind legs and scampered off among the rocks, and I never did get a picture of a chamois, but I remember how they look, so I've drawn this picture for you.

FURNITURE IN HOME

—By Marian Moore—

THE quiet dignity of the Colonial room is shown in this interesting corner. It is full of suggestions for the home of Colonial architecture, or the person who has a collection of Colonial furniture and can't place it just right!

The chair in the foreground is an odd one, with a wide arm. Opposite it is an upholstered arm chair, with a chintz slip cover under a wrought iron lamp. A rush bottom Colonial chair stands before the window, and in the corner of the foreground is a straight little Colonial table whose top proclaims it a genuine antique. The windows are draped with flowery chints, with the backs for both overdrapes and ruffled glass curtains.

THREE-MINUTE TRIPS

VILLAGE UNDER ONE ROOF

By Temple Manning

THE Karen tribes, a native race of Burma, are a very fine-looking people. Though primarily Mongolians, their skin is of a rich brownish tint and they have very fine eyes. Some of the women are rather handsome, and have that indescribable something which is only expressed by the French word "chic."

The Karens in the hill country are centuries ahead of the West in their mode of living—or rather in the manner in which they are housed.

No people are more clannish than the particular Orientals. It is an offence even to marry outside their own village. And for this reason a man does not have to look far for a wife. No people of any other village could live more closely together than do the Karens.

Here probably were the first apartment houses! For that is exactly what a Karen village is—an apartment house.

But they are not huge structures built of steel and concrete—they are of a very light wood.

These primitive apartment houses are constructed entirely of bamboo and without the use of a single nail. The split bamboo flooring rests on upright poles of the same wood. The joists and girders are tightly bound together by strips of bamboo fibre.

In this building is one huge room, known as a guest room. Going off from a large corridor are about twenty other rooms.

In each of these rooms lives a family.

It is an interesting sight to the traveler in the outlying districts of this country to see the various members of this community running up and down the slender ladder going up into the house.

On days of weddings, funerals and religious ceremonies the house literally bursts with activity, for it all takes place within this single structure.

Are your hands rough and hard?

The regular use of Resinol Soap is frequently all that is required to overcome such conditions, and produce that whiteness and velvety softness so much to be desired.

If however, the hands are in very bad condition—if they crack open and smart after being in water—use Resinol Ointment as follows—

Bathe the hands freely with Resinol Soap before retiring. For completeness, Rub in Resinol Ointment gently but thoroughly and cover with old gloves. In the morning bathe again with Resinol Soap. In most cases a few such treatments produce very satisfactory results.

FORBES' VIEWS ON FINANCE

—By B. C. Forbes—

How would you like to be told, "I am going to leave you $50,000,000?" That was what his father told Ed Wolff, now general sales manager of the David Adler & Sons Clothing Company of Milwaukee, when a youth of eighteen. Mr. Wolff recently told the following to an intimate friend who happened to be a friend of mine and he has just told me about it.

"I am the son of a rich father. He came to this country with $13, he often told us. He educated me until I was eighteen years old, and then he said, 'Now, son, you know that I have made a great deal of money.'

"'Yes, sir.'

"'You know it is customary for wealthy men to leave their sons a part of their wealth as an inheritance.'

"'Yes, sir.'

"'Well, possibly you feel that you would be well off on my death. I left you, say, $10,000, or $20,000. Wouldn't you?'

"'Yes sir.'

"'Well, I am going to do better than that. I am going to leave you fifty millions of dollars. Think of it—fifty millions. If—Ah—that is to say, there will be fifty millions of dollars available for you in this country when I die. All you'll have to do is to go out and get them.' When I did I shall leave my sons not one penny. Money that the owner doesn't earn is a curse. I shan't curse a son of mine. Now, son, finish.'

To this Mr. Wolff added:

"I am more than ever convinced the best inheritance for every healthy man is fifty millions of dollars—collectible by the legatee from the world at large, if he is rash enough to get it."

Don't you agree?

I hear that an important shipping merger is underway.

Although steamship companies have been enriched by the many fares collected from the mobs or less prudent Britons who have been pouring into this country to enlighten us on various subjects, several political economists also will be accorded one such visitor scheduled for arrival in the fall. Namely, ex-Prime Minister David Lloyd George. Regardless love a fighter, whether he be a statesman like Roosevelt, a pugilist like Dempsey, a soldier like Pershing or Joffre, or a politician like Lloyd George. Lloyd George is one of the cleverest catch-as-catch-can debaters and speakers on public life today. He isn't afraid to say what he thinks. And he isn't afraid to think. He is Britain's Roosevelt.

Wall Street, like everything else in this imperfect world, has its faults. But Wall Street hasn't all the faults attributed to it. Isn't there a good deal of justice and truth in the following communication: * *

"Did you ever notice how many things seem to happen to 'brokers' —in the newspaper headlines? The indiscriminate use of this term appears to be growing. When a man is caught in some compromising position, he becomes involved in some doubtful transaction, and his business connections are vague, he is almost invariably characterized as a 'broker.'

"This works a real hardship to a worthy and important class of business, and to a less extent those of business men. Can't we do something to minimize or abolish it?

"Now, I know there are real estate brokers, and insurance brokers, and brokers in every kind of commodity and service, ad infinitum. And I admit that anybody who brings buyer and seller together comes within the dictionary definition of a broker.

MEX. SEABOARD AT FRESH HIGH FOR YEAR

Industrials became most active in lively and strong week-end trading on the New York Stock Exchange. Mexican Seaboard was up more than 3 points to a new high for the year. California Petroleum, getting to be known as "the new Mex Pete," was again at a fresh 1923 high.

U. S. Steel was up more than a point to a new top on the current move. American Can was active and more than 4 points higher. International Paper was active and up around four points, its most spectacular move in months.

Gains of 2 to 4 points were made by Beech-Nut Packing, Postum Cereal, Baldwin Locomotive, Coca-Cola, Crucible and Gulf States Steel. Studebaker ran up 4 points.

Atlantic, Gulf & West Indies sold at its lowest in years at 13¾, off around 2 points. This contrasts with the stock's former high of 1924.

Point or better advances came in American Locomotive, Chandler, Corn Products, Crucible, Cuba Cane preferred, Kelly Tire, Lima Locomotive, Mack Truck, National Lead, Pacific Coast, Pennsylvania & and R. Reading, Retail Stores, Republic Steel and Stromberg Carburetor.

Weekly mercantile reviews reported a disposition to stress the favorable aspects of the business situation, reflecting a change from the tendency of a few weeks ago when trade circles were inclined to be pessimistic. Attention was called to such reassuring factors as heavy consumption of goods and discouragement of speculative excesses.

Prices among leading industrial shares were around the peak levels reached on the current recovery.

SECURITIES LIST.

To A. M., Providence—Kingdom of Belgium 7s, 1925, are considered good enough but high grade, and they may be held. Standard Gas & Electric preferred is a good stock and one of the cumulative kind. It has been improved by the declaration of the initial quarterly dividend of 1½ per cent. on June July 25 to holders of record June 30. Equity behind this stock is found to be greater than the par value of the preferred. Electric Lighting stock and its market is better. Narragansett Electric Lighting 6s can be paid at 104 dividends since 1884 regularly, was estimated at the close of 1921 to have an equity of only $1.38 a share.

So much for the securities you have named. Some of them are not highest grade. It is our opinion that your list of securities could stand the insertion of some higher grade issues, good railroad bonds for example. We should like to make suggestions along this line but are limited in our ability to advise you. We do not know how much money you have put into the securities you name nor do we know what money you have at hand to invest. If you will supply us with these facts regarding your present holdings and our estimate of them we shall gladly give you further advice.

AMERICAN BOSCH.

To J. S.—American Bosch Magneto Company has not announced its unfilled orders since 1920, therefore, we are obliged to tell you that we cannot serve you in the report for 1922 the president expressed the expectation that the year 1923 would be satisfactory in volume and profitable because estimates in the first three months were in excess of 100 per cent. greater than they were in the same quarter of 1922.

You will probably recall that for the year December 31, 1922, the company reported earnings of 27 cents a share on its 36,000 shares of no par value capital stock, compared with a deficit of $1,342,142 in 1921. At the close of 1922 current assets were recorded at $4,705,894 and current liabilities at $1,625,684, showing a net working capital of $3,038,071. Net tangible assets applicable to capital stock was estimated at $56.48 a share.

Though shipments increased in the first quarter of this year we should not consider the earnings of the past two years afforded a basis for believing that dividend prospects were in any way immediately assured, however, is merely an opinion, for no one can foretell at what price stock will sell in the near or distant future. We hope that these facts will help you to arrive at a conclusion.

FAILURES FEWER FOR PAST WEEK

Business failures for the week ending May 24 number 225, which compares with 239 the week before and the like week of 1922, 317 in 1921, 1920 and 89 in 1919, according to Bradstreet's.

Maine Central

Maine Central Railroad scored excellent recovery in earnings in April with a net operating income of $438,431 against $119,692 in April 1922, and a surplus after fixed charges of $276,687 in contrast to a deficit after charges of $35,453 last year.
